BOY BURGLAR AT BAY COMMITS SUICIDE

Facing Revolvers of Police Who Had Run Him Down, 17-Year-Old Lad Deliberately Sends Bullet Through His Own Brain.

Special to the Boston American.

FALL RIVER, April 23.—Driven into his lair in a little Summer house in Mt. Hope avenue, and standing at bay unflinchingly as revolvers gleamed in the hands of his pursuers, Edward F. Moriarity, but seventeen years of age, yet accused of scores of burglaries in Globe Village and other parts of Fall River, to-day cheated the law and shot himself in the head, dying instantly.

He had planned everything. The boy of seventeen had known that sooner or later he must fall into the clutches of the law if he were not quick, and his nerve never failed him.

Proving that he had determined to die rather than be taken prisoner was a little letter of parting, to "Mamie" his sweetheart, in which he had written: "If I am found dead you will know that I died for the love of you."

KNEW GAME WAS UP.

For months the police have been on the trail of Moriarty, who always said that his parents were dead. He had lived in a little room at No. 1,183 South Main street, but had not been there for weeks, owing to the activity of the police.

With the cunning of a desperado of thrice his age and experience, young Moriarty managed to elude all of many burglaries and leave not a shadow of a clew by which to trace him.

But he was finally suspected of a break and entry and robbery. Then the police started to find him.

Today Policeman Wiley and Sampson found him in a Fall River street and the boy fled like a deer with th epolicemen in hot pursuit. He seemed to know that his game was up, for he dodged into the little shack of a Summer House and stood his ground at bay at last ,in a dark corner in the hut.

"Come out of there," shouted the officers. "We've got you at last, Moriarty, you might as well give up."

PULLED OUT A REVOLVER.

"You're guessed wrong," said the boulevers boy, facing the two big policemen with out a tremor.

"Come out now. We've got you," said the policemen.

"No, I won't. I'll not give up," replied the lad.

"We have a dozen men outside," said Patrolman Wiley, "and you might as well surrender."

Then the officers drew their revolvers and started into the shack to stop any further parley.

"Not on your life," was the retort of the boy and his face never paled as he saw the revolvers. As the policemen closed in on him, Moriarty with his left quick that he could not be stopped pulled a big 38-calibre revolver from his pocket, pointed it at his head and pulled the trigger.

As the officers darted forward the lad fell at their feet, a bullet hole in his forehead. He died without a struggle. He had shot through his brain.

Found Letter to Girl.

While searching his pockets the police found a letter addressed to his sweetheart. They refuse to disclose who the girl is. The letter was dated April 12. Here is it:

"Dear Maude—If I am found dead you will know that I died for the love of you. I loved you, Mamie, with all my heart, and hereby die.—EDWARD F. MORIARITY."

Moriarity had been in court several times and to the police was known as a thoroughly bad boy. Scores of breaks in the district were perpetrated by him.

The boy has always maintained that s parents are dead, but the police say that his mother is alive.

GROVER CLEVELAND'S CONDITION ALARMING

EX-PRESIDENT ILL AT LAKEWOOD, N. J., HOTEL—SPECIALISTS MAY BE CALLED.

NEW YORK, April 24.—Wall street this afternoon got the report that the condition of former President Grover Cleveland, who is ill at Lakewood, N. J., is much more serious than dispatches from the resort have indicated Much concern for Mr. Cleveland's recovery was expressed.

Unless a change for the better comes before night, it was reported, specialists from this city would be hurried to the former President's bedside Mr. Cleveland is still at the Lake Hotel, where his illness compelled him to remain after the place closed for the season.

SOCIETY WOMEN IN COURT OVER HURDY-GURDY WAR

PROMINENT MUSIC TEACHER HAS NEIGHBOR WHO DISLIKED HIGH NOTES BEFORE JUDGE.

Mrs. Emma B. Eddy (see Cambridge Social Register) and Mrs. Kileski Bradbury (no hyphen, See Cambridge Social Register, also Who's Who in the Musical Register) walked right into Cambridge District Court to-day, had a heart-to-heart talk with Judge Stone, then turned around and walked right out again.

So far as horrid publicity goes, and reporters, and any loud talk, and all that, there was simply nothing to it.

BUT—

They do say that a mysterious hurdy-gurdy, which has been persistently humming "Harrigan, That's Me," "I'm Afraid to Go Home in the Dark" and other nonclassical stuff under the front windows of Kileski Bradbury's music studio, and thereby interfering with Mrs. K. B.'s teaching the young society bud how to sing, has lost a profitable job and that the Kileski-Bradbury pupils are to be left to warble in peace hereafter without any hurdy-gurdy accompaniment.

This much the reporters know.

War Over Music Lessons.

Mrs. Emma B. Eddy lives at No. 33 Trowbridge street, Cambridge, having moved there recently from Newton.

Mrs. Kileski, Bradbury lives at the corner of Trowbridge and Harvard street, right near Mrs. Eddy's apartment. Mrs. K. B. is a soloist, sings in Boston churches, and gives music lessons to society girls. Mrs. Kileski Bradbury receives pupils on Mondays, Wednesdays and Saturdays. And as a coincidence, a hurdy-gurdy man used to stray around there on Mondays and Wednesdays and on Saturdays and grind out "Harrigan" just as some Kileski Bradbury pupil was going up the treble.

"Case Continued to October 22."

A few days ago Mrs. Kileski Bradbury complained to the police that Mrs. Eddy was disturbing the peace and Mrs. Eddy came into court to-day on a summons.

Mrs. Eddy and Mrs. Kileski Bradbury walked up to the court's bench and Judge Stone leaned over a bit and there was five minutes of talk so low that the honest reporter didn't get even a look in.

All that was officially given out at the close was the illuminating information that the case was continued to October 22.

MORGAN RAIDER DIES IN POVERTY

NEW YORK, April 23.—With a smile on his face, and clasping to his breast a sword which he had carried as one of Morgan's raiders in the war of the Rebellion, Colonel William S. Warwick was to-day found dead in his squalid little apartment on the top floor of a rooming house at No. 2,711 Arthur avenue, the Bronx.

Roslindale Family Saved from Fire

Harry J. Reidy and Mrs. Reidy and their eight children, who escaped flames that destroyed their home.

FATHER SAVES NINE LIVES IN FLAMING HOME

Carries Family to Safety While Fire Destroys House in Roslindale.

To his wife's keen sense of smell, his own presence of mind and rare courage Harry J. Reidy owes the lives of his eight children to-day. When his wife discovered that their pretty home at No. 31 Dale street, Metropolitan Hill, Roslindale, was on fire she awoke her husband who, although escape by every stairway in the large fifteen-room house was choked by flame and smoke, carried every one of his children to the roof of a rear piazza, secured a short ladder and carried them all to safety and then turned in the fire alarm.

Reidy is a chauffeur working for the city of Boston. At 2:30 this morning his wife smelled smoke and rushed to her husband's room. She shook him, crying: "Harry, the house is on fire!"

Mr. Reidy leaped from his bed and rushed to the front stairway to investigate. He was driven back by clouds of smoke. He ran to a rear stairway, and there a wall of flame and smoke drove him back.

Drops Children to Safety.

Reidy hurried to the rooms where his children slept and guided them one by one to a window in the rear of the house overlooking the roof of a piazza some feet below. To the roof he dropped the little ones, ordering them to wait for him.

Despite the fact that the upper part of the house was rapidly filling with smoke, the brave father found each one of eight children and placed them all on the piazza roof. Then he lowered his wife to the roof and from it he jumped ten or fifteen feet to the garden below.

By this time the house was a roaring furnace within and the flames were shooting out of the windows. Reidy secured a garden ladder, ran up and caught sleeping Baby Marian, two and one-half years of age, and carried her down in a blanket. Then the father carried Anna, five, Gerald, seven, Florence, nine, and Christopher, eleven, down the ladder, one at a time to safety. Harry, thirteen, Margaret, fifteen, and Catherine, seventeen, followed their father down the ladder and Mr. Reidy helped his wife down.

Buried by Falling Wall.

Then Mr. Reidy ran to Beech and Poplar streets, where he sent in the alarm. The firemen came with engine 36, but the house was a mass of flames. They were handicapped by two lines burst ne.

While the firemen were flooding the interior of the house a chimney fell, burying Captain McGrath under the debris. He was dug him out of the ruins and sent home. The Fire Department Reports: There is was found that he had sustained a broken collar-bone and many serious cuts and bruises. He will be confined to his hospital for some time.

By the time the flames were checked the house, which is owned by C. J. Nordlich, was completely gutted. His loss is $5,000, while the furniture and clothing of the Reidy family is destroyed. Their loss is over $1,000, covered by insurance.

GOVERNOR GUILD IS GAINING STRENGTH

After an illness lasting nearly two months Governor Curtis Guild, Jr., is well on the road to recovery, and it is expected that he will be able to go out within a few days. He sat up in bed yesterday and had quite a lengthy chat with Attorney-General Malone regarding local affairs.

SOUTH END BASEBALL GROUNDS, April 23.—Putting the opening game into the past tense, the Doves resolved to think only of the present and the future. With that commendable idea in view they came on the field this afternoon smiling and cheerful. It was the second game with the Phillies on native heath and with the opening festivities buried there was only the doping out of how to win to-day's game to trouble their minds.

It was almost mid-summer weather and the players simply reveled in the sunshine. Pitchers with suspicious wings took a chance and let themselves out, and none fled everybody whom it might concern that a few more days like this would put them right on edge. It simply was a fine day for the players.

Manager Joe Kelley had to get out his dope sheet before he could hand his lineup to Umpire Klem. He has a few cripples on his staff, including Ginger Beaumont the centre fielder, who is groaning slightly with a lame back. Pitchers Ferguson, Dowlin and Pfeffer are also on the hospital list, and Kelley himself is not inclined to take many chances with his underpinning.

The Phillies, on the other hand, have no cripples in tow. All the men are declared to be in fine condition, except one or two of the older pitchers, who have been held back awaiting the appearance of warm weather. Days like this will soon get them to the firing line.

And maybe the fans didn't appreciate the change in temperature. After ten days of mufflers and fur-lined overcoats it was a great treat to be able to sit on the benches without any top coat whatever.

The preliminary goings of the ball-players were run through with plenty of vigor and they performed practice stunts that have not been seen before this season. Even Umpire Klem got the glad hand from the players when shown what a bit of warm weather will do for hardy athletes.

CHICAGO DEMOCRATS BOLT THE CONVENTION

WILL NAME CONTESTING DELEGATION TO DENVER—SULLIVAN RULES MACHINE.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 23.—Delegates representing the "Illinois pure" Bryan Democracy of Cook County (Chicago) bolted the Democratic State convention to-day and are holding a rump convention in a downtown hotel. They will draw up a protest against the legality of the big convention and name twenty contesting delegates from Cook County to the Denver convention.

All opposition to the indorsement of the wording.

Bryan by the regular Democratic State convention collapsed just before the convention met at noon to-day.

National Committeeman Roger Sullivan apparently retains complete control of the party. This was shown at the congressional caucuses to-day to select district delegates to be passed. There will be no opposition to the instructions accompanying the Sullivan delegation to support Bryan's candidacy for the presidency, but those who did not agree with

UPBRAIDED BY MOTHER, BOY TRIES SUICIDE

"Fannie, take my ring and remember me."

Frank S. B. Ketchell, eighteen years old, dependent because he had quarreled with his mother, wrote this above note to his sister, and then shot himself with his brother-in-law's army service revolver today in his sister's house at No. 75 Revere street, Winthrop, opposite Fort Banks, the United States coast artillery post.

The bullet took effect in the young man's shoulder, and he was removed to the Fort Banks Hospital. He will probably recover.

Ketchell lived at No. 20 Harvard street, Winthrop. After his mother had rebuked him to-day he went to the home of his sister, Mrs. Fannie Parkey, the wife of a soldier at Fort Banks. While she was away from the house on an errand he wrote his farewell note and then shot himself with her husband's revolver.

WIFE POUNDED HEAD ON WALL, SAYS DOCTOR

HAINES, DEFENDER OF DIVORCE SUIT, TELLS OF STRANGE ACTIONS OF HIS WIFE.

That his wife always seemed melancholy from the day he married her; that she had a habit of creating scenes at different hotels where they stopped and that on one occasion, at the Hotel Touraine, in Boston, she pounded her head against the wall and shouted that she wished she would fall dead, was the testimony given by Dr. Ignatius Haines of Cambridge in the Middlesex County Probate Court today in the action brought against him by his pretty young wife, Francis R. Haines, for separate maintenance.

Dr. Haines was on the stand in his own behalf nearly all the forenoon. He said he was a graduate of Harvard and for five years has been chief medical examiner of the John Hancock Life Insurance Company. He told of their marriage in the Auditorium Annex, Chicago, on March 18, 1907, and of the honeymoon trip to St. Louis.

Acted Oddly on Visit.

Mrs. Haines, the doctor said, first acted strangely a few weeks after the marriage, while they were visiting at the home of her sister in Chicago. There was a company of guests playing cards in the evening. In the middle of a game Mrs. Haines got up from the table, went to her room and locked herself in. Her husband, in ignorance of where he was going to sleep, followed her to her room and knocked upon the door, but she refused to let him in. "Then," he said, "I had to go and find my own bedroom."

At Cleveland, afterward, he said there was a scene at the Holland hotel. Coming to Boston they occupied a room at a day at the Touraine. Mrs. Haines was melancholy one evening and, walking up to a mirror, she stood in front of it and for several minutes looked at herself. Then, the doctor testified, she said to herself:

"Why did I marry again? I ought to have known I would never be happy."

Beat Upon the Wall.

Leaving the mirror, the doctor said, his wife beat the wall with the palms of her hands and then with her head, yelling:

"Oh, God, strike me dead! I'm so unhappy. I do not want to live."

Florence Heath, a servant in the home of the Haines family at one time, testified that when Dr. and Mrs. Haines were at Winthrop Beach during the month of July, 1907, the doctor always carried his wife's breakfast to her room every morning.

Representative George Aong of 1,797 Massachusetts avenue, Cambridge, an undertaker, testified yesterday that he had known Dr. Haines since their boyhood days, and that he met his wife last June.

"She told about one married man in Chicago who called on her occasionally and remained all afternoon and well into the evening. She said that she couldn't get rid of him.

That Mrs. Haines suffered a "brain storm" and attacked her husband in principal fashion while they were sojourning last Summer at a lake resort in New Hampshire was the statement of Dr. William David Hennen of New York, a witness for the defence.

"What, in your opinion as a medical expert, was the matter with Mrs. Haines?" Dr. Hennen was asked.

"She was suffering from brain storm," he answered. "I saw symptoms of hysteria. Her eyes stared, as if she was in a trance. She complained of a choking sensation, all of which culminated in a mania."

WU TING FANG SCOURS HUB FOR A "MERRY WIDOW" HAT

Chinese Minister, who has dropped for the present his query: "Are you married; how many children have you?" to ask for a sight of one of the new millinery creations.

BURNING DESIRE OF CELESTIAL MINISTER IS TO SEE WONDROUS MILLINERY CREATION.

Will some of our good Boston women kindly introduce Mr. Wu Ting Fang to the Merry Widow hat.

Mr. Wu, the ingenuous Oriental diplomat, who is back here to represent the Celestial Kingdom in the diplomatic circles at Washington, is in Boston for over night as the guest of Charles S. Hamlin.

Minister Wu has been a never-failing well-spring of material to the Washington newspaper men and to the newspaper craft over the country on account of his habit of making the most unexpected remarks and of asking the frankest possible questions at any and all times.

It has been hinted that Minister Wu, for all his bland simplicity, knew quite as well as the next one the value of publicity. And the things he has asked and the things he has said have won him free publicity that had roused the envy of the professional press agent.

Wants "Merry Widow" Hat.

And now Minister Wu wants to know all about the Merry Widow hat.

In the opinion of many Boston husbands, saddened by their latest Easter experience, Minister Wu might let well enough alone. He's lucky, they think, that he doesn't know anything about the Merry Widow hat, about its appalling cost, about its outrageous area, and about the way it has the Boston woman hypnotized.

"O, happy Wu," sigh the men, "he never had to pay for a Merry Widow hat and then try to figure how he was to squeeze through to next pay day."

But Wu wants to rush in where angels fear to tread. He was asked to-day if he knew the aforesaid hat.

Regretfully he answered that he did not.

"But," he observed with winsome innocence, "it must be a merry thing."

Wishes He Could See One.

"I wish I could see one," pursued Minister Wu.

If he keeps his eyes open during his stay in Boston, as he is pretty apt to do, he will surely see one of these creations. He can hardly mistake it, for there be said to be nothing under the sun or on the earth or in the waters that equalled the Merry Widow hat.

"I think," continued the Oriental diplomat, "that there are three rules for what you wear—comfort, convenience and beauty. And, first of these is comfort. Now, do you think these Merry Widow hats mean comfort?"

"I have heard," added Minister Wu, "that these hats make trouble in the street cars."

To-night the distinguished visitor will address the Merchants' Club at the Algonquin Club on the commercial development of China. Maybe by that time he will have met Mrs. Merry Widow hat and added another item to his varied store of knowledge.

ROY, IN PARIS, TELLS STORY

PARIS, April 23.—Examining Magistrate Boucard today actively took up the investigation of the case of Paul E. Roy, the Frenchman who is accused by his American wife, known as Gladis Calin, of killing her brother, George A. Carkins, at Newington, N. H., last January. Roy appeared before the magistrate accompanied by his lawyer, Antony Arnin, and presented his story of how the death of Carkins occurred. The proceedings were secret.

Roy formally protested against the accusation of murder contained in the document which Magistrate Boucard read to him, declaring that he was neither an assassin nor a murderer.

INJUSTICE CORRECTED

The statement in the list of bankruptcy cases in which the names of Martin L. Hall & Co. of Boston, Goldsmith, Wall & Co. of Boston and A. P. McTrillis & Son & Co. of Boston, appeared in connection with the case of McLean & Co., should have stated that these three firms were the petitioners against McLean & Co.

Neither of these three firms should have been mentioned in any other way. These firms are of high credit and character, and any reference to them, as otherwise, is in error and greatly to be regretted.

This error did not appear in the BOSTON AMERICAN. The correction is made at the request of the newspaper which made the mistake.

SIOUX IN WAR PAINT SELL AMERICANS

Wild West Indians in "Buzz Wagon" Vend Newspapers to Delight of Big Crowds.

In a "Buzz Wagon," as they called the automobile, seven Sioux Indians, in full war paint and feathers, sold the BOSTON AMERICAN in the streets of Boston, the first time that the Red Men have ever vended any newspaper in this city.

Surely Big Chief Medicine Horse, the only Medicine Man of the once great tribe of the Sioux alive said: "I no like 'Buzz Wagon.' Sell papers in Boston town heap big fun."

Every one of the Indian of the seven liked both "Buzz Wagon" and paper selling. So did the crowds. Thousands of BOSTON AMERICANS were bought up the crowd which pressed around the big automobile.

The seven Indians who are with Young Buffalo in the "King of the Wild West," now playing at the Grand Opera House rode from the BOSTON AMERICAN office to Summer street, where they had been photographed, to the South Station last evening at 5 o'clock and sounded the war whoop and sold BOSTON AMERICANS right and left to as many of the thousands as could get to reach.

Big Chief Medicine Horse would not deign to take very active part in the peaceable, mercantile scene. Although he can speak English and doesn't know how to read a word he sat in the front seat of the auto poring over the pages of the paper as though devouring every word.

Then the Indians were whirled from Dewey square to Park street, to Scollay square, to Adams square, to Cornhill, to Tremont row, to the Public Library and Back Bay station and thence to their hotel.

Stops were made all along the route and papers sold everywhere. To buy a twenty-inch century newspaper from the bronzed hands of a red man or a squaw was cool good a chance to miss. The Indians who sold the papers were: Big Chief Medicine Horse, Philip Poor Bear, Eugene Red Tail, Yellow Hawk, Mrs. Yellow Hawk, Spotted Horse and Rose Good Voice.

NOT TOLD OF WIFE'S DEATH; HIRES LAWYER

Malden Man Wonders Why Mother-in-Law Kept Facts From Him.

EXPLANATION DENIED HIM

John F. Feldermann, a railroad fireman living at No. 82 Winter street, Malden, is seeking to find out why he was not notified last Friday of the death of his young wife at her mother's home, No. 60 Tremont street, Malden, and why she was buried in Forest Dale Cemetery Monday under her maiden name, Elizabeth M. Aldrich. His mother-in-law won't tell, so Feldermann has hired an attorney to investigate.

It was not until an insurance agent called on him yesterday that Feldermann knew his wife was dead. Word of her illness had been sent to him a week ago, and he sent flowers to the house, but they were returned by his mother-in-law without any explanation.

The marriage of Feldermann and Miss Aldrich, both in their early twenties, was solemnized on December 31, 1906, by the Rev. William T. Dowey, pastor of St. Paul's Episcopal church, Malden. They lived in Charlestown until October, when they separated, Mrs. Feldermann going to mothers, in Tremont street, and Feldermann to his mother's, in Winter street.

After Mrs. Feldermann's death, the death certificate was made out under her maiden name. Tuberculosis was given as the cause. The young husband declares he never knew his wife was dead until the insurance agent called to fill out a death claim. Then Feldermann sought his mother-in-law, but information was refused.

Now he has hired Attorney Anthony G. Reddy of Malden to look into the matter. The Aldrich family presume to talk.

WILLIAMS HAS BIG MAJORITY OF CONVENTION

In the most anathetic caucuses ever held by the party in Boston, the Democratic voters of the city last night elected delegates to the State convention to be held in Tremont Temple on May 7, and to the various congressional district conventions. Only 3,008 votes were cast throughout the whole city of Boston.

There were no contests worthy the name except in Ward 14, where Judge Logan's faction went down to defeat before the opponent, that led by John J. Norton. It was in this ward that the heaviest vote was polled, 984 ballots being cast.

In Ward 10 there was an effort to elect a delegation pledged to Governor Johnson of Minnesota, but the Johnson men were defeated by an unpledged delegation. Unpledged delegates were elected in all the wards except Wards 8, 13, 17, 18 and 24, which declared for Bryan, all the rest being unpledged.

In Ward 13 a ticket headed by Secretary Thomas J. Cullina of the State Committee was presented against the ticket of Senator Linehan. Secretary Cullina is identified with the anti-Williams wing of the State Committee, while Senator Linehan is a staunch Williams supporter. The Linehan ticket won, two to one.

In the wards controlled by the Kennedy-Donovan organization unpledged delegates were elected. The Fitzgerald-Foley-Fitzgerald-Lomasney-McNary alliance for George Fred Williams may precipitate opposition in the State convention from the Kennedy-Donovan forces.

Of the 244 delegates elected in Boston, George Fred Williams has a comfortable majority.

George Fred Williams claims a safe working majority in the convention, with votes enough to perfect an organization of his own, no matter who the State committee may recommend for convention officers, and with sufficient strength to send to Denver four delegates-at-large of his own choosing.

LIFE A DREAM, AND DEATH ITS AWAKENING

—Tolstoi

PARIS, April 23.—"I know with certainty that in dying I shall be happy and that I shall enter a world more real."

Count Tolstoi thus sums up his anticipations of death in reply to a friend who congratulated him upon his approaching eightieth birthday.

All earthly life, he says, is a dream and death the true awakening. He avails that awakening with happiness. Elaborating on this idea, he says:

"Our earthly life is one of dreams of another and more real life, and that other life is a dream of yet another, and so on ad infinitum even to the last life, the life of God.

Of death at different ages and under different circumstances he says:

"Death in youth is as when a man is awakened before he has slept full measure. Death in old age is as when one wakes of his own accord after a good sleep. Suicide is as a nightmare which a man banishes by remembering that he is asleep. He makes an effort and wakes."

HARVARD BOY BREAKS SKULL

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 23.—R. H. Aronson, an outfielder of the Harvard baseball team, is at the Naval Academy with a fractured skull, sustained during the baseball game played here with the midshipmen yesterday afternoon. The injury was received while sliding to base. Dr. J. M. T. Finney of the Johns Hopkins Hospital was sent for and made a record run from Baltimore on a special car.

Ralph Harris Aronson is a sophomore at Harvard and makes his home at No. 10 Verndale street, Brookline, with the family of David J. Joel, a shoe manufacturer. He is a former Roxbury Latin athlete.

Agnes Johnstone Farnum, wife of Actor Farnum, who has sued him for divorce. Photograph made while she was learning horsemanship in a Boston riding school.

ACTOR NAMED BY GOULD NOW SUED BY WIFE

Mrs. Farnum Brings Secret Divorce Proceedings Against Matinee Hero.

SAID TO BE IN BOSTON

Dustin Farnum, the actor whose name was used by Howard Gould in answer to the divorce suit by his wife, Katherine Clemmons, was sued for absolute divorce to-day by his wife, Agnes Johnstone Farnum, of Boston, Massachusetts young woman, and who is believed to be in Boston now.

News of the divorce action, which has culminated secretly, to come upon the publication of the evidence in the Gould separation case, has created a sensation in theatrical circles and elsewhere where the beautiful Mrs. Farnum is well known.

She was declared to-day to be at the Hotel Somerset, but at that place it was said that nobody was registered there under that name. A theatrical man declared that Mrs. Farnum occupied a box with Anna Held at the Hollis Street Theatre yesterday afternoon, but Anna Held declared to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter that she did not even know Mrs. Farnum.

Extraordinary precautions to secrecy have been taken in the case. Following the appointment of former Lieutenant Governor M. Linn Bruce as Referee in New York by Supreme Court Justice Victor J. Dowling, it has become known that the middle names of Dustin Farnum, who are not familiar to the public, were used in the title of the suit, which reads: "Agnes Johnstone Farnum vs. D. Lamey Farnum."

CO-RESPONDENT KEPT SECRET.

To obtain an absolute divorce a statutory ground must be proved, but the names of any co-respondents in the case were not revealed last night. Attorney Ernest K. Coulter, for the plaintiff, declared to be in Philadelphia and Assistant United States District Attorney D. Frank Lloyd, who was retained by the defendant, is said to be in Washington.

The alleged friendship between Farnum and Mrs. Howard Gould was detailed at considerable length in the answer filed by Howard Gould in his divorce proceedings. He charged his wife with following the actor about the country when he was touring with his company, and with entertaining him at various places in New York. To all these allegations Mr. Farnum entered energetic denials and declared his friendship with Mrs. Gould was merely casual.

One incident related was of an alleged automobile trip to Atlantic City, in which Mrs. Gould, May Robson, the actress, and Mr. Farnum were named as participants. Miss Robson later denied that there was anything improper about the trip.

IGNORANT OF THE DETAILS.

To-day Mr. Farnum declared that he was ignorant of the details of his wife's charges, and was anxious to see the accusations.

Friends of Mrs. Farnum declared to-day that the name of Mrs. Gould did not appear in the charges. They persisted that the actress' name which the petition contained transpired long before the disagreement in the Gould family, and that the divorce action would have been started long ago but for complications caused by Mr. Farnum's absence.

Other friends say the case will not be contested, and that the most formal manner. Mrs. Farnum is only suing for an absolute divorce at this time, and being, it is said, will take action for counsel fees and alimony.

QUARANTINE PRISON TO CHECK EPIDEMIC

Fearing widespread epidemics of measles and diphtheria among the 700 prisoners the prison commissioners have quarantined the State prison at Charlestown, while its attention is closed to all outsiders. Even prisoners ending their terms are unable to leave the prison and will be held until the quarantine is raised.

Friday Three-Hour Sales

THE BULLSEYE EVERY TIME.—The spring is late, but this in no way affects the drawing power or bargain force of the Three-Hour Sales. It is one of the strong points of these sales that they are always adapted to present wants, whether the season be early or late, hot or cold, wet or dry. In the range of what we offer tomorrow you can hardly fail to find just the things that you are looking for at this time. To this characteristic and to their never-failing low prices may undoubtedly be attributed the uniform success of these sales.

HIPPODROME ENDS; STARS WAIT FOR PAY

About $4,000 Said to Be Due Performers in Back Salary.

MAY ARRANGE A BENEFIT

Stung!

Such is the title, chorus and refrain of the Boston Hippodrome talent to-day.

The show came to a sudden end last night after the performance was over and after Oscar Lowande called a halt down on the financial question. Lowande says to-day that he even went so far as to offer to put on his equestrian acts for a ridiculously small price, paid down every show, but that Manager Albert H. Rogers couldn't take him up, or didn't take him up at least.

Then Lowande made such a roar that others, primed for trouble, chimed in, and the Hippodrome gave a few convulsive kicks and surrendered the ghost.

Mr. Rogers Wasn't in.

The Hippodrome performers, down to the porters and laborers, will talk to-day. And when a circus employe gets talking about back salary that he hasn't received his conversation is "frequent and painful and free."

A reporter who made a laudable effort toward noon to extract some sort of a statement from someone representing the management couldn't get one. A "Beverly-do."

A cop at the door said he was put there by Superintendent Halbrook of the Mechanics building to keep people out who shouldn't go in.

"Well, is Mr. Rogers in?"

"No, no bet."

"Is Mr. Comee (personal representative of Rogers) in the building?"

Mr. Comee was in. But a party of the second part, who was at the door to up the cop off on "who's who for admission," slipped out the information that "Mr. Comee was busy and couldn't see nobody nohow."

To Arrange a Benefit?

The fact that a reporter was snooping around seems to have resulted the management, however, for Rogers had the reporter back to the newspaper office by jumping onto a telephone and saying that he was trying to arrange a benefit for the Mechanics' Building employes, providing he could get the building free for three performances.

After the break last night General Superintendent Claude Hagen said that he had been sold unofficially that the management owed the performers about $4,000, and was unable to pay it. Business had been poor from the start, why, Mr. Hagen did not know.

LEAGUE'S CAUCUSES TO-NIGHT

DOUBLE CAUSE OF DIVORCE SUIT OF MRS. COOKE

Authoress Declares Woman of Same Name and Profession Is to Blame.

HUSBAND BRINGS ACTION

NEW YORK, April 23.—A series of remarkable incidents growing out of a case of mistaken identity is the real cause of the suit for divorce now being brought against Mrs. Grace McGowan Cooke, the well-known authoress and magazine writer. This fact was learned to-day by the American, following an explanation made by Mrs. Cooke herself.

Another woman named Mrs. Grace Cooke, whose profession is similar to that of Mrs. Grace McGowan Cooke, is the latter's "double" and the innocent cause of the present action.

The second woman's full name was Mrs. Grace Wilson Cooke. She obtained a secret divorce from her husband, W. H. Cooke, and married William Warren Carpenter last year.

Names Used in Report.

The couple are now living at No. 133 West One Hundred and Fortieth street, and almost daily Mrs. Carpenter receives mail intended for Grace McGowan Cooke, who lives in Douglaston, L. I.

In the published reports of Mrs. Watson Cooke's marriage to Warren Carpenter the name of Mrs. Grace McGowan Cooke was used. Word of the marriage got to the latter's husband, W. H. Cooke, whom she had left two years before in Charleston, Tenn.

He believed that his wife had either committed bigamy or obtained a secret divorce. Two months ago Mr. Cooke first wrote to Mrs. MacGowan Cooke and asked for an explanation of her supposed marriage to Carpenter.

Did Not Deny Marriage.

Mrs. Cooke was so indignant that she wrote a scathing letter to her husband, but scorned to make a denial of the marriage.

"He should have known, after being married to me twenty years," she said, "that I couldn't be guilty of anything like that."

Still under the impression, it is said, that his wife has married again, Cooke has commenced suit for divorce on the ground of desertion in the Chattanooga courts.

To-Day's Lesson in The American's Course for Salespeople

No. 26

Copyright, 1908, by American Journal-Examiner.

Lack of courtesy toward customers, while not a common fault among salespeople, is nevertheless quite prevalent; and discourtesy, whether intentional or not, is something no manager, superintendent or proprietor will countenance.

Courtesy of speech and action toward a customer is what is expected. It does not matter if the customer may not be equal in courtesy, it is the clerk's part not to let his or her manners get below the level of at least ordinary politeness.

It always pays to be polite. If the customer is disagreeable or irresponsive to polite treatment the clerk still has the satisfaction of knowing that he or she acted like a gentleman or lady.

It often influences people other than the one you may be dealing with, for instance—

A customer at the notion counter was rather disagreeable and insisted that she was right about the name of a certain brand of tape. The clerk politely got several boxes, to show the customer that she was probably mistaken about the brand name.

The clerk was very polite in a rather hard situation. The customer left apparently unconvinced. Another customer, overhearing the conversation, complimented the clerk upon her politeness and the clerk made a very good regular customer.

Besides, the lady who was so positive RETURNED LATER and admitted she had been mistaken.

Next Lesson in Saturday's American.

Cut out these "lessons." Every Sunday we print a review and self-examination. A good plan is to clip the lessons and reviews out and paste them in a scrapbook. You will then have a manual on salesmanship that you could not buy for a good many dollars. It may be worth hundreds to you in increased salary.

APPEAL TO AID 5TH CO. VICTIMS

An appeal has been sent to all the military companies through the State for relief for thirty-eight members of the Fifth Company, C. A. C., of Chelsea, whose homes were destroyed in the Chelsea conflagration which they were doing duty with their company, preventing looting and loss of life.

The company was ordered out early in the morning, the members leaving their clothing in the armory. The armory was destroyed. Of the thirty-eight whose homes were burned eighteen had families dependent upon them. Major Walter E. Leonard, with headquarters at No. 7 Water street, Boston, will receive checks from militia companies or individual militiamen, and will personally attend to the distribution.

SAVE 24 FROM BURNING SHIP

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, April 23.—The steamship Majestic arrived to-day, bringing details of the rescue of twenty-four men from the Norwegian tramp oil steamer Hellos, which was afterward set afire and scuttled to prevent it from becoming a derelict dangerous to navigation. During a terrific storm on April 2 three oil tanks amidships burst and the Hellos, steaming about 1,000 tons of oil into the hold. The fumes from the oil made it necessary to batten down the hatches. The men could not work the pumps, and the ship leaked badly. Captain Kjorbee decided to abandon the vessel. At that time the Majestic came alongside and took off the men. This was accomplished none too soon, for six of them were unconscious from the oil fumes.

BOY HIT BY A CAR; MAY DIE

While crossing Meridian street, East Boston, near Trenton street, little 3-year-old Willie Barton of No. 35 Trenton street, son of James Barton, was knocked down by a Chelsea-bound car, and is now in a dangerous condition at his home.

The doctors fear that he may not recover. The little boy's head was badly injured.

Special to The American.

ELLSWORTH, Penn., April 23.—Four Italian laborers were killed early to-day in an explosion of gas in mine No. 1 of the Ellsworth Coal Company's mines at Ellsworth, Pa.

There were between 85 and 100 men in the mine when the explosion occurred.

The damage to the mine was slight.

If Your Heart Stops—

Well—

What fat person can tell when? You know, of course, what it means when your heart stops. It is all over. About one-quarter of all deaths of heart disease are caused by fatty degeneration of the heart. And the heart of nearly every fat person skips a beat every few minutes. At any one of these skips that heart beat may be your last. If your heart goes thump-thump-thump-to-thump—thump—look out. As you read this your heart may fall back dead. Lemuel Stanford, a fat boy farmer, was found stone dead sitting in a chair, staring with open, glassy eyes at a newspaper held firmly in his stiff, cold hands. Those are not rare cases.

Excess fat is dangerous at all times. While the fat person may be of excessively good spirits, a jiggety, laughing soul, he knows not at what moment some slight over exertion may usher in Death.

You will have no time to prepare when the fatal second has arrived. It will be all over. Save yourself and your family such a calamity. You can do it by using "Hemo," without a doubt the most wonderful fat remedy which has ever been discovered. It is made of tropical fruit extracts, and is absolutely safe.

There is nothing "just as good" as Hemo. For sale by all druggists at $1.00 per full sized box, or by mail prepaid by The Hemo Co., 3212 Hemo Bldg., Detroit, Mich. The company will gladly send a trial package free for mail. If you prefer them direct to Detroit, no free packages at drug stores.

567 CASES IN FEVER SCOURGE

Eleven new cases of typhoid fever were reported to the Boston Board of Health to-day, making a total of 567 cases in the city since April 1, when the present epidemic broke out. Of to-day's cases four were from the Jamaica Plain district and two from East Boston, in which districts the ravages of the disease have been the worst. Three cases were reported from the city proper and two from South Boston. From April 1 to date 340 cases have been reported from Jamaica Plain and ninety-eight from East Boston.

In the twenty-three days of the epidemic there have been twenty-four deaths. Fifteen of these have occurred in Jamaica Plain, four in East Boston, three in the city proper, one in Roxbury and one in Brighton.

3 WEEKS', NOW HACKETT PLAY

NEW YORK, April 23.—A contract for the presentation of "Three Weeks" has been signed by James K. Hackett and the author, Mrs. Elinor Glyn. America will soon see dramatic version of the novel which caused such wide and diverse comment, for Mr. Hackett has decided upon presenting the new play in August.

The actor-manager will not essay the role of Paul, giving the excuse that he is "too tall" and "too old" for the part. So instead of the maiden idol playing Paul a real live English actor will come over from his native heath and show American men how to make love in "Three Weeks."

Neither will an American actress play the Imperatorskoye. One of the cleverest of French actresses has been engaged for some time. Why a sale it will be absolutely necessary to use a woman who speaks English as a Russian princess would speak it and as American or English women can do that, she avers.

MRS. DODD SAYS GOSSIP DROVE HUSBAND AWAY

Wife of Millionaire She Has Sued for Divorce Gives Her Side of Domestic Quarrel.

"ALWAYS TRUE TO HIM"

Mrs. Andrew W. Dodd of Salem, who has sued her millionaire husband for divorce, believes that the scandal-monger is due to gossip and friction in the household caused by misunderstandings. She was a beautiful girl of twenty-three when Andrew W. Dodd, millionaire glue manufacturer, made her his second wife. She was a stenographer in a Boston office and about thirty years his junior. The Dodd family is very prominent in North Shore society, and soon after the marriage about five years ago several episodes in which members of it figured caused a series of sensations.

Three years ago Mr. Dodd suddenly left home, and it was said that he sailed for Europe. Young Mrs. Dodd's mother, Mrs. Annie E. Clapp, said that he had made no provision for the support of his beautiful wife outside of an allowance of $40 a week. Mrs. Clapp said of Mr. Dodd's sudden departure for Paris:

"He went away without leaving anything to eat in the house—but even so much as a pinch of salt."

Wife Suspected Desertion.

Young Mrs. Dodd, however, had heard rumors that her husband intended to leave her. After his departure she said:

"I cannot say why Mr. Dodd left me. I have always been a loving wife. I have tried by every act in my power to be true to him. He has repaid my love and kindness my making confidants of barbers and hairdressers in the town. He has played with servants in my kitchen. He made a dupe of me and left me without a cent to face sneers and contumely."

Young Mrs. Dodd, who is tall, slender and a brunette, has two-step sons. When she entered the Dodd family one was a Princeton student and the other a cadet at the Highland Military Academy in Worcester. The latter, James A. Dodd, retired a year a few months after his father left his stepmother by drinking carbolic acid in a Beverly street car and it was said, broke, of an extremely sensitive nature, that his father's domestic troubles had made the boy despair. A year ago Andrew W. Dodd Jr., the eldest son, married Miss Agnes Josephine Herrick, a very talented musician of Worcester.

Wept When Leaving Home.

Mr. Dodd, the millionaire who suddenly left his home and is now being sued for divorce, has made no statement as to why he took such a startling action. He wept like a child before he departed. He said to a servant, "God knows it is hard for a man in my ill health and of my age to leave his home."

Now that there are divorce proceedings, North Shore and Boston society expect that the question, "Why did Mr. Dodd leave home?" will be answered in court.

CHELSEA BENEFIT AT THE COLUMBIA

At a benefit in aid of the Chelsea fire sufferers at the Columbia Theatre next Sunday afternoon, talent from Keith's, the Orpheum and other playhouses will take part. Many of the Columbia people have thrown his house open to the disposal of the relief committee, and the engagement in public life have joined in the effort to make it one grand success. James Donovan, former superintendent of streets, and Ralph Eichler will be at the box office to sell tickets. Congressman Keliher and Aldermen Fitzgerald and Clark will collect them, and others will be on hand to see that the wheels run off without a hitch.

The affair is under the auspices of the Ward 6 Chelsea Relief Committee. The committee to-day reported a large advance sale of tickets. The performance will begin at 1:30 in the afternoon and the price of admission has been set at 25 and 50 cents, nothing higher.

Oftentimes you need a medicine to tone the digestive organs, keep the bowels open and prevent any after-eating distress. Your first choice should always be

BODY OF 17TH FIRE VICTIM RECOVERED

CHARRED REMAINS OF JOSEPH BENNETT ARE FOUND IN RUINS OF HIS HOME.

The charred body of Joseph Bennett, colored, an engineer who was employed in Boston, was discovered by searchers at noon to-day in the ruins of Bennett's home at No. 98 Fourth street, Chelsea. This makes the seventeenth body found. Bennett was sixty-nine years of age, and although he had been on the missing list since the fire it was presumed by friends that he had escaped. Search was made for him, but no clue to his whereabouts could be found. To-day ffiends decided to dig through the ruins and down under tons of debris they discovered the body. The medical examiner was notified.

The following prominent citizens of Chelsea have been authorized by the general relief committee to sign identification cards for the immediate delivery of all supplies except food to persons who lost everything through the fire:

Rev. F. W. Bakeman, Rev. J. Curry Bush, Rev. John A. Higgins, Rev. H. H. Nazarian, Rev. Father Weick, Rev. Father Cusack, Rev. Father Quinlan, Rev. Father Grady, Rev. Father Hegan, Joan Fedden, William Evans, Mrs. H. A. Penney, Rev. M. Burrell, Rev. C. F. Wilson, Rev. E. S. Thorpe, William Martin of Thomas Martin & Sons Manufacturing Company, H. Bartels of the Bartels-Tostien Company, James H. Malone, Malcolm V. Macmillan, Rev. Mr. Harris, Rev. Mr. Seamans, George W. Hastings, Rev. Reginald Down, Young Arthur E. Gates, Max Mitchell, Anita the daughter of the Chelsea Relief Union Maternity Department, Edward S. Willard F. A. Pitcher, John Campbell, Henry Hyde, William Robinson, Willia mWyeth and Alton E. Briggs.

Clash Among Officials.

In the midst of the work being done for the relief of the Chelsea fire sufferers, two clashes have occurred between city officials and between members of the Chelsea Medical Society and Chairman McClintock of the general relief committee.

Alderman Charles H. Black at the meeting of the board last night took occasion to criticise Mayor John A. Beck, who was not present. President Alexander Cook, speaking against the proposed commission to govern Chelsea, thought there were as many wise heads in the city as the State House could send out.

About thirty members of the Chelsea Medical Society gathered last night to discuss what they termed the arbitrary methods of Chairman William F. McClintock, claimed that the advice of the medical men had been ignored in the matter of fixing the sanitary conditions of Chelsea, and that Mr. McClintock turned down their selection of the physician to be a member of the committee.

Chairman McClintock in reply to the criticism said that he thought the medical men, like all the other workers, were suffering from nervousness due to the strain of the last ten days. He disclaimed any intention of ignoring doctors' requests.

Owing to the fact that the state officers were compelled to go to Revere, Everett and Boston in the work of summonsing witnesses, the inquest into the cause of the fire was not held to-day, but will be continued to-morrow morning at 9 o'clock.

Many new facts have been brought to the attention of the investigating officers, and among the witnesses they seek to-day is a resident of Revere who, it is said, saw a man running all over the roof of his house. This house was not burned.

It was announced by Lee, Higginson & Co. that the amount in the Fourth Relief Union has received to-day is $20,000.

Danger of Epidemic.

Unless immediate steps are taken to remedy sanitary conditions about the city there is danger of an epidemic of typhoid, according to Dr. Charles Lewis as it was reported that several sewer pipes have been broken, and owing to the condition of the ruins it has been found impossible to make the necessary repairs at once.

It was for this reason that the medical men advised that the roads be not reopened.

The trouble between Chairman McClintock and members of the Chelsea Medical Society was brought about finally by the rejection of Dr. Charles Lewis as a member of the general committee. The appointment of Dr. Lewis, who is one of the oldest physicians in the city, was recommended by his associates. Instead, Dr. Matthews, son of the chairman, was appointed.

CHELSEA CITIZENS IN CONFERENCE OVER COMMISSION BILL

A conference of Chelsea citizens and others interested in the Chelsea commission by commission" bill which is to be submitted to the Legislature in a few days, was held in room 425, State House, to-day. E. B. Hong, a former member of the fire engineer's department, presided. Those present at the conference were Representative William M. Robinson, Andrew J. Bailey, Mayor John E. Beck, City Solicitor Harry James, David A. Lourie, Rhesbarri Harris, Benjamin F. Dodge, Ex-Alderman John Duncan, William Martin, Hon. William Hosmer, chairman of the State Board of Arbitration; Representative Ernest Bisbee of Revere, Representative Elbert Wilson of Revere, Sheldon Alfred S. Hall of Revere, Alfred F. Magill, former superintendent of streets, and David Malomey.

NOTED BICYCLISTS AND SKATERS WILL AID FIRE BENEFIT

A benefit for the Chelsea fire sufferers will be given at the Park Square coliseum and Skating rink Saturday. There will be professional and amateur bicycle races, mounted prize drill and an exhibition fine dance by Albert Champion, the "Dance Devil" French rider. All the cyclonists and the employes have donated their services. The affair will be under the management of Alec Macleaan.

Besides the races there will be an augmented card in the rink. Miss Nellie Dougan and Earle Reynolds, champion fancy skaters, now appearing at the Colonial Theatre with the Anna Held Company, will be seen in Parisian ballet dances and merry widow waltzes, appearing in Augmented costumes. Mrs. F. W. Bancroft is working indefatigably in aid of the benefit. The committee in charge comprises Mr. and Mrs. Bowen, A. A. MacLan, D. M. O'Brien, Aldermen Morris, Nat Barker, George MacLaren and Henry L. Bowen. The ladies' aides to appear include James P. Moran, Sol. Butler, P. F. Logan, Major Taylor, Hugo Mastenga, R. Lake, Peter Drobach, William F. Ivy, Charles Hodder, Charles Turville, L. Stoughton, George Cameron, T. Connolly, D. Connolly, P. O. Stillman, N. M. Anderson, Tom Lawson, F. Bridgette, Ivor Lawson, Fred Hill, Tom Panacy and Albert Champion.

PUPILS OF BURNED SCHOOLS NOW TAKEN CARE OF IN CHELSEA

Six of the public schools in Chelsea are reading session only. Three of them opened last Friday, while three opened on Monday. Ninety per cent of the pupils attended the Lee street, Spencer avenue, Bloomingdale, Prattville and Carter schools after the school opening.

Pupils from the Shurtleff School and part of those from the Williams School are to attend the Forsythe Street School. They were enrolled there at 12:30 this afternoon.

Pupils from the Williams School in the Bellingham district of Prattville School. Regular sessions are to be held from 8 until 12 in the morning and from 12:30 until 4:30 in the afternoon. The children who attend the schools from burned schools are to be divided into two sections, some going in the mornings and others in the afternoon, that all may be accommodated.

MEETING PLACE IS FOUND FOR 200 CHELSEA REFUGEES

Through the courtesy of the Boston section of the Council of Jewish Women, the 200 children of the Mendelssohn Sabbath School, who lost their quarters in the Chelsea conflagration, will meet Sunday morning with the Mendelssohn Sabbath School in Dereon Hall, No. 1,051 Washington street, at 10 o'clock.

METROPOLITAN AIDS VICTIMS

Six thousand Chelsea fire sufferers who are policyholders in the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company have received welcome news from that company that no premiums or arrears on premiums will be asked of them till next June. Any such will be incurred among policyholders in the fire will be considered as insured, regardless of any arrears or whether policies premium receipt or books have been issued.

S. D. Bartlett, Boston district manager of the company, was in charge of the work with the fire still in progress. He planned to protect the company's policyholders in every possible way, and his action has been heartily indorsed by J. B. Hegeman, president of the company.

Two of the company's agents who were burned out in the fire, were rescued with the pay roll and told to go out and help relieve the suffering.

The company has reopened its Chelsea Andover, Mass., sixty-six years ago. He had been ill five weeks.

GEORGE PRINCE, LOWELL, DEAD

LOWELL, April 23.—George Caleb Prince, who died of heart failure last night at his late residence, 1 Sargent avenue, Belvidere, was one of the best known and most highly respected men in this city. Funeral services will be held at his late home to-morrow at 1 p. m., and will be conducted by the Rev. George F. Martin, pastor of the First Congregational church, of which the deceased attended.

Mr. Prince was a civil war veteran, and served his country in Company I, Forty-fourth Massachusetts Infantry, on the field of battle. He was prominent as a Freemason, and his stationery since at No. 100 Merrimac street was the home of Mr. Prince in Lowell. He was the Lowell distributor of the BOSTON AMERICAN. His business will be conducted by his only son, Arthur B. Prince. Mr. Prince was born in Behold the Betty of the New Spring Bonnet!

By Nell Brinkley

There are fat little ones like flower pots or butter tubs upside down; others have spines with markings like a lizard's back

There are little funny fellows with brims chopped off and monstrous crowns

Like Billy's top hat — Flat ones that can't get inside a door — Low over her brows

Javelin feathers, like spears above the heads of a column of knights. — Crinkled ruffles and pink rose s. The "piano lamp shade" hat

There Are Hats for Every Face, and They're Beauteous! But Where Is the Hair Going to Be Put?

THE subways and the "L's" and the streets are gay like Summer flower gardens, and bristling with thin feathers and thick feathers.

A row of pretty faced things across from me made a little smile curl up one corner of one's mouth. They were a little army helmeted and armed. The Javelin feathers were like spears above the heads of a column of knights. And the spikes were there—you know, white, with a step-ladder of markings going up them to the tip of them, like the markings on a lizard's back.

So many "flats;" so many "Broad, curled-up ones that sit low down over her brows—dainty hats to make eyes at the Billy's under, angel faces! Little funny fellows with chopped-off brims and monstrous crowns built like Billy's top hat. Postillions, that make her look, with the new great collar that stands up around her ears, like a boy who used to swing and sway at the back of the ladies' coaches and hop down and trot to fling open her door when she climbed therefrom. These great flat ones that can't get inside a door when she comes square at it, with the lizard feathers and a flatness of surface about them that makes the hat one single line when you get it in exact profile.

Then there are the fat little ones that look like flower pots or butter tubs upside down, with two whopping roses like cabbages perched on the side of them.

They sound kind of funny, and they look that way, too, unless they have a round kid face with a sassy nose and jolly eyes in them, and then—hands on your hearts and dreams in your heads, Billikens!

Then there are the ones of the crinkled ruffles and the silken crowns and the pink roses; and they need the kid face, too. "Piano lamp shades," a bold Billy called them.

There are hats for every face, and they're beauteous; but where is the hair going to be put? There isn't any place for Norwegian and Breton peasants' hair, angel faces! And even your own pretty hair won't show!

But it'll be kind of jolly to make one's hair plain again; just the "chick chaos" don't squash so far down over one's head that they hide one's eyes.

Maternal Authority

Dorothy Dix Asks How Far It Should Go

By DOROTHY DIX

THE other day I had a letter from a woman who complained, in effect, that her daughter ever consulted her mother's wishes in the matter of marriage.

This seemed to the mother a monstrous wrong, and to show a great lack of filial respect on the girl's part, and in consequence of the mother's insistence on bossing the daughter's love affair and the daughter's resentment at it, there were strained relations between the two that threatened to result in an open breach.

According to the mother's own account the girl was of mature age, and in intelligent business woman, who had supported herself for several years.

The fiance also was all that was desirable, a worthy young man in a good position, and the couple were only waiting to be married until they had laid by enough money to enable them to begin their wedded life sensibly and practically on a secure financial footing.

All that the mother objected to was that the young man accompanied the girl home every day from work and came to see her almost every evening.

This did not coincide with the mother's ideas of the proper etiquette of the occasion. She forbade the young man to come so often. He rebelled, and the girl rebelled.

Trouble ensued, and one more man will enter matrimony with a deep and abiding prejudice against a mother-in-law, and the mother and daughter will never again stand in the same sweet attitude toward each other.

Danger in Tyranny

I have given at length the details of this tempest in a teapot because it is typical of so many other letters of complaint that I get from mothers, and points out so clearly the fact that parental tyranny is responsible for just as many family tragedies as filial disrespect or disobedience.

In this particular case the mother is undoubtedly the one who is in the wrong. Any girl who has got sense enough to hold down a good job has got intelligence enough to run her own love affair. More than that, the very fact that she is self-supporting gives her the right of personal liberty.

If her mother saw her doing something that was criminal she would be justified in doing everything possible to stop her; just as long as she is behaving with perfect propriety she has a right to her taste, whether her taste agrees with her mother's or not.

It is silly to try to treat an independent bread-winner as if she were a little stay-at-home schoolgirl, and no business girl or girl with a grain of spirit could be expected to stand it.

All Matchmakers

PROBABLY there never was and never will be a woman in the world who will not think that the only reason that there is so much matrimonial discord is because she was not consulted about every marriage before it was made.

Every woman is sure that she could pick out a much more suitable husband or wife for everybody else than they picked out for themselves.

When it comes to a woman's own children marrying, she gets perfectly rabid on this subject, and she not only is certain that she knows exactly the man that Minnie ought to marry, and the very girl for Tim, but she wants to supervise their courtship as well.

Now, as a matter of fact, although mothers will never find it out, their children have not the same tastes as they have. Their children are not attracted by the same kind of people that they are, and if they followed the maternal advice in marrying they would land in the divorce courts inside of six months.

Neither are mothers clairvoyants. They cannot look into the future and see that the man they object so strenuously to Minnie marrying becomes in the course of a big to be a trust magnate within twenty years, or that the girl they are so anxious for Tim to marry because her father is rich will have as her only inheritance six old aunts and sisters who will scrimp and live upon her husband.

Yet these things frequently happen, and the matches that mother makes are generally as heavy as her forecasts.

Daughter Has Rights

If a man is known to be drunken, or lazy, or immoral, a mother should move from marrying him, but if he has a clean record, it sounds to me like nonsense for a mother to forbid her daughter to live with him, and if he comes up to his daughter's ideal and suits her taste, the girl is the one who has the say.

As for the courtship, so long as she keeps that within the bounds of propriety, that is also her own affair. The home nest, of time that lies between the day a girl becomes engaged and the day she marries is the primrose time of her life for her. It is the little bit of romance that comes to her, the little interval of poetry in her hard and prosaic life, and anyone—even the mother—is a vandal who does one thing to mar its happiness.

After all, parental authority is the big stick that is best put out of sight behind the door. You can force your child to do as you say while she is in the home nest, as you say it, but days, the nest is open to the bird and young wings are strong, and you only keep your flight from you by holding your authority over her.

A little tact, a little diplomacy, a little recognition that perhaps you may not be a perfect judge of the man who is going to be best for your daughter, above all a sympathy with the girl and her point of view are the only weapons that a mother is entitled to use in dealing with her son or daughter.

If these fail, all that she can do is to try to reconcile herself to the fact that a daughter has some rights that even her mother is bound to respect.

The American Daily Short Story

The Daughter of the Regiment

By Louis De Brienne.

WHEN, after the carnage was over and the place had surrendered, and the victorious troops of Massena, with colors flying and the bands playing, marched into the doomed town, Colonel Lagardere, of the Twelfth Infantry, the heroic regiment which took such a conspicuous part in the battle, lodged his fatigued soldiers in the mediaeval castle of Perrara, the huge old dwelling of the noble family of the princes of Chalpied.

Nothing so gratifying to the eleven as to plant his tent upon the spot which had cost him much blood to conquer.

This castle of Perrara had been, during the whole day, the main objective point of the attack of Lagardere's veterans, and its capture had been dearly bought.

The Austrians, with that unlimited courage and dogged determination characteristic of their race, had defended the ancient walls of the formidable palace-fortress for seven hours and had only been driven from their ramparts after the most desperate assaults.

At length the brave defenders had been forced to yield, and now, toward sunset, the tricolor of France waved triumphantly over the parapets.

Colonel Lagardere, standing in the courtyard of the castle, was interrogating a few prisoners which his troops had made, when several of his men, who had been searching for refugees, emerged from the basement of the castle, bringing in their arms a child.

"Colonel," said an old sergeant, "here's a very interesting prisoner we have just captured."

"It is a girl," cried a soldier, "and a beautiful girl, too. Look at her, comrades, a typical little Piedmontese, with coal black hair and blue eyes."

The Colonel took the child in his arms. She threw her little arms around his neck, looked at him and smiled.

She was scarcely five years old; yet her plump little form shook with fear and her pale, frightened looks told eloquently of the terrors she had suffered during the long hours she had remained in that dark, cold basement, seated near the inanimate body of her nurse, who had been killed early in the morning by a stray bullet which pierced her heart.

When the victorious French soldiers while searching for fugitives and plunder found her she was not intimidated.

"What is your name, little girl?" asked Colonel Lagardere, with deep emotion.

"Rose," she answered, "and sacred name is Nanette, but she's asleep now."

"Where is your mamma?" the Colonel continued.

"She went out with papa and Joe."

Investigations were begun at once to find out who the child's parents were, but with out result.

Adopted!

Night had fallen, and the village had been deserted by its frightened inhabitants. Little Rose, no doubt, belonged there, but no one could be found that could identify her.

March was postponed until the next day.

But something unexpected happened. At dawn the whole village was attacked by the Austrians. A frightful battle took place.

Lagardere's troops were ridiculously few in the castle, and on the morrow a retreat was ordered.

The Colonel took the child along with him.

Two years have passed.

The Twelfth Infantry has continued its glorious career, greatly distinguishing itself at Lodi, Dego, Montenotte and Arcole. Bonaparte has commended it on several occasions in his famous orders of the day of the army of Italy.

The regiment has a flag of honor and a daughter.

Little Rose has been adopted and she watches, camps and lives among her soldier friends. She only leaves them on the days of battle, when Colonel Lagardere's aids ride with a scout to a place of safety far from the firing line.

She is the idol of those stern warriors, and all through the army of Italy she is known as the Daughter of the Twelfth.

The regiment has returned to France and little Rose has been, for the last five years, attending school.

She is now a beautiful girl of twelve, everybody now calls her "Mademoiselle;" everybody but her soldier friends. For them she is still "little Rose," and she would feel and answer them if they called her by another name.

On several occasions Colonel Lagardere had thought of sending her to his home that she may stay with his own family, but she has always refused, and besides, the soldiers have never consented to part from her.

She has no other parents, no other brothers, no other friends than these stern warriors; she lives among them, and no other home has she remained in but theirs, and loving to a young girl than these soldiers are to their adopted daughter.

She is their pride and they more than love—they worship her.

Home Again

Rose was fifteen years old when her regiment was ordered to cross the Alps and enter Italy.

One day, in the morning, Lagardere's soldiers occupied once more the village of Perrara, and once more entered the ancient castle of the Malipieri.

But it was different now. The town and people of its domain do the French without resistance; there had been no bloodshed.

The Molinard family now lived in their palace, could, unmolested, do as they were, they nevertheless offered their hospitality to Lagardere and his officers.

The Colonel was installed in the palace, and, of course, brought Rose with them.

Rose, Mme. de Molinard, and Charlotte, felt from the first moment the deepest interest for the young girl.

She questioned her about her life, about her parents, her ambitions and hopes.

Suddenly she uttered a cry. Rose had spoken about her childhood. She told Mme. de Molinard the history, so often related—how she was the soldiers of the Twelfth, of the assault of Castle Ferrara, and how she had been discovered in the cellar, taken out in the arms of the soldiers and afterward adopted daughter of the regiment.

"Then you are my long-lost daughter," cried Mme. de Molinard.

"What can take place then needs no description. The tears of mother and daughter mingled and their hearts melted with joy.

Then Mme. de Molinard summoned Colonel Lagardere, explained to him the discovery she had made, and embraced him with her.

"Madame," replied the veteran, "God forgive that I should deprive you of the love of your daughter. But remember that, too, here her soldiers, sorrowful, would be lonely without her. Nevertheless, your request being a just one, I would suggest that Rose divide her own devotion. Let us consult her and I promise that if she wishes to remain with you she will remain; but, at the same time, if she prefers to live with us—"

"Oh!" cried the mother, "she will remain with me. I know she will!"

Mme. de Molinard and the Colonel both spoke to her, and, let it be said in honor of the soldiers' daughter, although he loved the girl with all the affection of a father, he did not hesitate to point out to her the advantages of remaining at home.

"What can your future be if you follow us?" he said. "On the other hand, by staying with your mother you will find love the only thing we can give you and fortune, which we cannot offer you."

Rose threw herself into the arms of the noble soldier and wept.

"This is a very serious matter," she said at length. "Let me have time to think and decide."

Next day, her mother, with all the persuasive power of motherly affection, had begged her to remain.

"You are not even French," she said. Then she added: "If you leave me again, I shall die."

Rose could not bear to think that her heart was torn. She was about to reply, "I'll stay," when suddenly the earth shook with a great roar.

The enemy was attacking. A battle was about to begin.

The bugles of the Twelfth called the soldiers to the ranks.

Colonel Lagardere jumped into his saddle.

"Forward!" he cried.

Rose ran to a window. She beheld "her" regiment marching to the firing line.

"Georges up to mother!" cried. "I cannot leave them when they are going to fight."

And seizing the bullet-riddled flag of the regiment she marched with her soldier friends.

RICE CUTLETS

ONE-quarter pound boiled rice, one-half pound cold meat, one onion, one cup bread crumbs, one egg, salt and pepper. Chop and mix with the boiled rice. Season with salt and pepper and add the well beaten egg with enough milk to make a paste. Mould in the shape of mutton cutlets, dip in egg and bread crumbs, fry in boiling fat, drain and serve with tomato sauce.

MRS. JAMES C. FISHER,
Hotel Bellevue, Boston.

RYE GRIDDLES (ORIGINAL)

TWO one-half cup rye meal and one-half cup white flour, one cup sour milk, one heaping tablespoon flour, one-half teaspoon soda, one teaspoon sugar, cream tartar powder, one beaten egg. Mix with milk or half milk and water to a thin batter, and fry on hot griddle. Serve smoking hot with butter and syrup.—F. Ilsen.

RICE TRUFFLE

Put boiled rice into round mould. When cold, remove the centre and fill the space half full with jam. Cover with rice, fill the remaining space with custard. Cover with whipped cream, sweetened and flavored with vanilla, or put white of egg, stiffly beaten, with sugar over it.—Newport, R. I. MRS. T. C. OWEN.

LEMON PIE

TWO eggs, juice and grated rind of one lemon, one cup sugar (reaching full), one cup boiling water, three tablespoons flour. Mix sugar, flour and a pinch of salt together; add grated rind of lemon, yolks of eggs (well beaten) and lemon juice, and then the boiling water, and cook on stove until thick. Turn into cooked shell, cover with white of eggs, to which three teaspoons sugar have been added and mixture well beaten. Brown in oven.

BROWN SUGAR FROSTING.

One cup brown sugar, one-half cup white sugar, one-quarter cup boiling water. Boil until ropish form. Take from stove and turn slowly into a bowl in which is the white of one egg beaten to a stiff froth, stirring constantly. Beat until thick enough to spread.

MRS. JOHN N. PEASLEE,
North Sandwich, N. H.

ANGEL SPONGE CAKE

SEPARATE the whites and yolks of four eggs and beat each very stiff, put one-half cup of sugar in each and beat hard again. Then mix together. Add one cup flour, do not open the oven door for the first ten minutes.—MRS. B. L. BROWN, No. 805 Warren avenue, Brockton.

Expert Advice on Beauty

By the Professor

RED SCARS FROM NEEDLE

DEAR PROFESSOR:

I have some superfluous hair removed from my face with the electric needle, and the place where it used to be is quite red. Please advise me what to do.

YOUNG LADY.

Be patient, for it takes a long time for the scars to entirely disappear, but they will do so in the end. Try bathing them in a little hot olive oil twice or three times a day.

OWING TO CAUSE

DEAR PROFESSOR:

Will you please tell me if there is any cure for flushing or if it is considered beautiful? I am a great deal and feel very much ashamed.

DELIA.

EXCESSIVE flushing may be caused by faulty heart or nerve action. In such case a physician should prescribe. If the cause is excessive timidity and modesty, time and the world will cure it.

Brother Wilfred Now Wants to Be an Editor

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

"WILFRED'S a journalist now," said the Manicure Lady. She was happy and she looked the part.

"Has everything else gone back on him?" queried the Head Barber. "I thought he was going to try fighting."

"He tried it," said the Manicure Lady. "He was going to box Jack O'Brien, and to get into practice he took a lesson from a genu tl named Bob Farrell. Mister Farrell knocked him cold in the first round. Wilfred says there's nothing in the fighting game any more, except for the managers and promoters.

"Hasn't he tried life insurance?" inquired the Head Barber. "I thought that every guy who had tried everything else went into the life insurance business. That ought to come before journalism, anyhow."

"I don't know about that part of it," said the Manicure Lady. "All I know is that Wilfred is going to be a real journalist. Not one of these fellows that write for the Washington Heights Gazette, where they didn't pay him for his stuff, but a real swell proposition. He's going to write editorials."

"On what paper?" the Head Barber wanted to know.

"That part ain't settled yet," replied the Manicure Lady. "He told me all about his plans last night, and I think the deal will go through. He said all he and to do was to write a swell editorial or two and then show them to the managing editor of some live newspaper and get his job.

"Wilfred's Editorial

"HE sat up all last night writing this editorial, and I want you to listen, George, while I read it. It ain't long—you don't need to look at a watch. This is how it goes:

"Yesterday afternoon some Italian laborers were working on a building job in one corner of the large enclosure a young laborer was holding a drill while a powerful comrade directed and delivered powerful blows with a huge sledge.

"The man who was holding the drill never faltered. He knew, no doubt, that if the sledge missed the drill and hit his hands he would feel very much battered around the knuckles, but he tended strictly to the task in hand and never wavered for an instant.

"That young man is here—one of the world's great heroes. For perhaps one dollar and a half per day he faced death in the street use this String.

one of its most awful forms—death by sticking.

"It is well known to scientists that a severe rap either on the wrist or the knuckles will bring about this, yet this humble laborer did what he was expected to do.

"He was not taking such desperate chances from choice. No, HAD HE BEFUSED TO HOLD THAT DRILL, UPON WHICH HIS COMRADE WAS RAINING SLEDGEHAMMER BLOWS, HE WOULD HAVE BEEN FIRED!"

"Was that all of the editorial?" demanded the Head Barber.

"That was all," said the Manicure Lady. "Wilfred says that to reach the r Every real editorial writer should conden Racine thing, he told me, but I wasn't Racine to write very long editorials, because Wilfred says no one has any time to read them. What do you think of the editorial?

Doesn't Like It

"It ain't a very good one," replied Mr. Barber. "I came from the Head Barber. "I mean for any judge of editorials, before once I read in the papers sounds better than Wilfred's. I always figured it took a man with lots of brains and education to be a editorial writer. Where does Wilfred get it from?"

"Why, Wilfred's educated," asserted the Manicure Lady. "Didn't he go to business college?"

"Then why doesn't he try for a job as business manager on a paper, instead of writing editorials? There's more money in the business end of a paper, anyway."

"I never thought of that," said the Manicure Lady. "I'll tell Wilfred when I go home to-night. Maybe if they don't like his editorials they'll give him a business department job. Of course, being a poet, he would sooner write editorials, but I suppose he'd take the other job if they offered it to him.

"Well, how do dig up some kind of a job right soon, because Pa will lose his barber's union and hand Wilfred his walking ticket."

About thirty waists in different styles, plain nets, fancy dots and laces, in white and ecru, that have sold for $3.98 and $4.98 will be closed out for $1.98, as they are slightly soiled. These waists are excellent values at this price, are all silk lined and elaborately trimmed with bands of chiny, and val laces. A good range of sizes may be found in the lot.

NOTED GUESTS AT NEW PARTY'S GREAT DINNER

William R. Hearst to Make First Speech Since Recount Trial Began.

TICKETS NEARLY ALL GONE

NEW YORK, April 23.—Plans to make the National Party dinner, to be held at the Hotel Knickerbocker on April 27, the most successful political dinner of the year are rapidly being completed. The new party expects William Randolph Hearst, who will be the guest of honor, will deliver a memorable speech, and acceptances have been received from men of great prominence all over the country.

The banquet committee, in arranging the tables, has found such a rush of applications for seats that it has been able to reserve only a few choice places, and these will all be filled within a day or two, by which time it is expected most of the gentlemen prominent in the new movement will have been heard from.

Banquet Hall to Be Filled.

The banquet hall of the Knickerbocker will be filled if there were not another subscription received, but it is believed that the original plan will have to be changed to allow for more tables, so that all the guests will be well placed.

The tickets, which are being disposed of at $5 each, are being sent out by John J. Hopper, treasurer of the banquet committee, of No. 215 West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street, New York. Yesterday Mr. Hopper announced that he cannot guarantee any good seats to those whose sections has not received by Saturday, although he and the other members of the committee will be able to make some kind of provision for everybody who attends the dinner.

Inasmuch as Mr. Hearst's speech will be the first he has delivered since the recount of the ballots for the 1905 election was begun, it will be heard with extreme interest. The dinner has another significance for while it is the second annual dinner of the Independence League, it is the first big dinner, of the new National party.

List of Noted Guests.

The list of guests include Hon. William Randolph Hearst, Samuel Seabury, John Ford, Otto A. Rosalsky, Thomas L. Hisgen of Massachusetts, the party's candidate for Governor of that State at the last election; Bourke Cockran, the party's candidate for Judge of the Court of Appeals in New York last Fall; William S. Jackson, John D. Spellman of Vermont, William M. Osgood of Massachusetts, M. W. Howard of Alabama, John Temple Graves, Chance J. Shesrn, Henry A. Powell, Howard S. Taylor of Illinois, Grenville S. McFarland of Massachusetts, J. S. Sheppard of Kansas, Gasner William of California, C. F. S. Nesi of Indiana, Charles A. Walsh of Indiana and others of prominence in the affairs of the Independence League.

STAR THEATRE'S GIFT.

The Red Cross (Chelsea Relief Committee) headquarters on Causeway street have acknowledged the receipt of 1,284 pairs of stockings from the Star Theatre, No. 6 Bowdoin square, to aid the Chelsea fire sufferers.

PICK BIG BUSINESS MEN TO FIGHT THE MERGER

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE PRESIDENT TO-DAY SELECTING COMMITTEE TO OPPOSE BILL.

President Bernard J. Rothwell of the Chamber of Commerce is at work to-day selecting the committee of five delegated by the chamber yesterday to appear before the Committee on Railroads of the Legislature in opposition to the merger of the Boston & Maine Railroad with the New York, New Haven & Hartford.

"I may announce the committee this afternoon," said President Rothwell to-day, "and then again it may be to-morrow before I will be able to give out the names. I am getting in touch with members whom I desire to appoint, and from some I am awaiting acceptances."

Secretary Morss of the Chamber of Commerce says that there will be nothing further done by the chamber on the merger until President Rothwell appoints the committee of five. Before further action will then be determined by the committee this committee as well as being especially appointed for legislative work is given power by the resolution to take any other action they may deem wise to block the merger.

The resolution against the merger passed yesterday by a practically unanimous vote by the Chamber of Commerce is one of the most telling blows yet delivered against the proposed absorption of the Maine road by the New Haven.

Vice-President Byrnes of the New York road addressed the chamber recently, setting forth the advantages that New England commerce would derive from the merger, while Louis D. Brandeis in a straightforward talk to the chamber, opposed it. The members of the exchange comprise the largest receivers & distributors in New England of products from the country over, sides to the merger controversy declared the assistance that the support of the Chamber of Commerce would give. This has gone to the opponents of the merger.

BILL FORBIDS ELECTRIC AND GAS MERGER

The consolidation of the Boston Consolidated Gas Company with the Edison Electric Light Company is specifically prohibited by House Bill 301, introduced in the Massachusetts House of Representatives to-day by the joint legislative committee on public lighting, headed by Attorney Herbert Riley of Woburn and Captain Tom Pattison of Barnstable. On Beacon Hill it is believed that the bill reported to-day will not be fought. It was drafted for the Board of Gas and Electric Light Commissioners, which was instructed by last year's Legislature to investigate the consolidation of gas and electric lighting corporations in this State and report recommendations.

The bill authorizes gas companies to consolidate with other gas companies. Electric light companies can also combine. But no gas company in Massachusetts can consolidate with an electric lighting concern. The Boston Consolidated Gas Company has a monopoly in this city of gas lighting, and the same be true of the Edison corporation in regard to electric lighting.

The clause specifically prohibiting them from consolidating is in the bill as an amendment.

REFUGEES NOW STRICKEN WITH MEASLES

An epidemic of measles is an additional misfortune to the 180 Chelsea fire refugees who have been housed in the Irvington street armory since the conflagration. Five children were stricken with the disease, and they and their relatives have been deported to other quarters. The members of one other family have been isolated in a room in the armory set aside as quarantine, and the entire building has been fumigated.

The illness was first diagnosed as measles yesterday afternoon by Dr. Butler and prompt action was taken to prevent its spread. To-day Dr. Shea of the Board of Health decided that a member of another family had developed suspicious symptoms, and this too is being isolated.

All the patients are children. They played together, and while other little refugees in a room set aside for the purpose, and there is terror in the armory to-day lest a large number of other fire sufferers will be stricken. Prominent Jewish society women have been visiting the armory and looking out for the comfort of little Israel, and it is also fear that the disease may be carried into wealthy homes in Boston.

No information has been given out as to where the deported families were taken.

BERLIN CANDY SHOP WIPED OUT BY FIRE

BERLIN, N. H., April 23.—A fire, which started early to-day, destroyed a candy shop, owned by James A. Pickford on Main street, and the house of M. Wallingame, causing a total loss of $10,000.

SAVE ENGINES FROM FIRE AT RISK OF LIVES

Risking their lives by a daring rush into the old Fitchburg roundhouse, the interior of which was a seething furnace, two Boston & Maine engineers ran out three costly locomotives, while sheets of flames licked at them through the cab windows. The fire, which started from an unknown cause, completely destroyed the roundhouse at Somerville and the ten engines which were left within.

The fire was discovered just after 10 o'clock last night. The railroad men started to fight it without outside aid, but their hose burst before a stream touched the blaze. Then an alarm was rung in, but the big engine house was a mass of flame before the arrival of the firemen.

In the meantime, Engineer Adams of the wrecking engine had rushed into the blazing roundhouse, and the cab of an engine that had steam up and run it into the yard. Jumping down again from his seat, he again dashed into the building and saved a second locomotive.

Engineer Harry Pease of one of the yard shifting engines disappeared into the dense, stifling smoke that filled the engine house and soon locomotive No. 180 emerged.

Planes were shooting into the air from the woodwork of the tender and the coal and timber around the cab windows. A conservative estimate places the loss in the vicinity of $25,000.

DR. AMESBURY SANE, DECLARE ALIENISTS

The alienists appointed to examine Dr. Walter R. Amesbury reported to the Norfolk Superior Criminal Court at Dedham to-day that he was not insane when he shot and killed his wife at her home in Hyde Park last Christmas Day.

The commission, composed of Drs. George F. Jelly and Joseph W. Courtney, says: "While a man of considerable emotional instability, Dr. Amesbury was not insane at the time of the homicide, nor is he at the present time."

Dr. Amesbury is under indictment for murder, first degree, and upon receiving the report of the sanity commission the court ordered his presentation for trial next week.

His counsel, John P. Leighton, announced the discovery of a defect in the indictment, whereby the name of the defendant's victim was given as Anna, instead of Anna "R." Amesbury. On this ground he moved for a postponement, and it was granted. The case was put over to the September term, and meanwhile the District Attorney will have the indictment corrected.

2 THUGS ROB POOR WOMAN IN BROAD DAY

LYNN, April 23.—Mrs. Catherine Barry, a poor scrubwoman, with four small children, was held up and robbed of her purse, containing ninety cents, by two burly men on Central street this afternoon. Mrs. Proctor of the office building in Exchange street, one of the men held her while the other rifled her handbag. James F. ("Shaman") Burnett and William J. Miner, Lynn men with prison records, were arrested.

After working since midnight scrubbing floors in the building, Mrs. Barry finished at 8 a.m., and sat down in the office of the Boston Mutual Life Insurance Company to await the arrival of the janitor to get her pay. The handbag was in her lap.

The door of the office was open and as the two strangers entered Mrs. Barry arose to leave. One of the men stepped in front of her and told her to sit down again and be quiet. Then he put his hands upon Mrs. Barry's shoulders and held her, while his companion grabbed the handbag and rifled it.

Some books and papers which the ousted men threw upon the floor. The purse was taken out and then the bag was returned. Mrs. Barry screamed as the pair departed. Frank B. Estes, a constable, was in the building at the time and as he ran down the hall in response to the woman's cries, he collided with Burnett, holding him until the arrival of the police.

After Burnett had been taken away by the officers, Miner returned in search of his companion and was arrested. Mrs. Barry identified both men.

At the police station Miner broke down and cried.

BATTLES WITH FIRE TO SAVE HOME; DYING

NORTH ATTLEBORO, April 23.—On the anniversary of her father's death in flames, Mrs. Mary Couture, thirty years of age, of Attleboro Falls, lies dying as the result of burns which she received while battling with a brush fire, which threatened the destruction of the pretty home which she and her hard-working husband, Elzead Couture, had just purchased.

Thinking only of saving the new home, Mrs. Couture dashed out of the house and began a brave fight to check the onrush of the flames. Just as she had succeeded in putting out the fire a final flickering flame seized her light house dress, and in an instant the woman was ablaze.

Shrieking in agony and fear she ran to a neighbor's, Mrs. Joseph Marcourtier. Mrs. Marcourtier ran to Mrs. Couture's assistance and with a bucket of water managed to extinguish the flames just as the woman fell fainting to the ground.

Dr. W. F. Miles of Attleboro, was summoned. He says her death is a matter of a few hours. Just one year ago, Mrs. Couture's father, Joseph Duquette of New Bedford, met a tragic death under exactly similar circumstances.

4 YEARS FOR METER THIEF

The Boston Consolidated Gas Company is making a vigorous effort to put a stop to the raid on ... repayment meters by men who break into ... collars and basements and by others who secure entrance by pretending that they are agents of the company.

James Callahan, alias James Willson, was sentenced to-day by Judge Brown in the Superior Criminal Court to not less than four nor more than six years in State prison for having burglar tools in his possession and for larceny from prepayment meters of the Boston Consolidated Gas Company.

He was sentenced last July for a year in the House of Correction for the same offence, but was paroled in six months. After two weeks of freedom he was again arrested for the same thing. This time the company pressed, through its attorneys, for a severer sentence as an example.

NOTED GUESTS AT NEW PARTY'S GREAT DINNER

William R. Hearst to Make First Speech Since Recount Trial Began.

TICKETS NEARLY ALL GONE

NEW YORK, April 23.—Plans to make the National Party dinner, to be held at the Hotel Knickerbocker on April 27, the most successful political dinner of the year are rapidly being completed. The new party expects William Randolph Hearst, who will be the guest of honor, will deliver a memorable speech, and acceptances have been received from men of great prominence all over the country.

The banquet committee, in arranging the tables, has found such a rush of applications from men that it has been necessary to reserve only a few choice places, and these will all be filled within a day or two, by which time it is expected most of the gentlemen prominent in the new movement will have been heard from.

Banquet Hall to Be Filled.

The banquet hall of the Knickerbocker will be filled if there were not another subscription received, but it is believed that the original plan will have to be changed to allow for more tables, so that all the guests will be well placed.

The tickets, which are being disposed of at $5 each, are being sent out by John J. Hopper, treasurer of the banquet committee, of No. 215 West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street, New York. Yesterday Mr. Hopper announced that he cannot guarantee any good seats to those whose sections are not reserved by Saturday, although he and the other members of the committee will be able to make some kind of provision for everybody who attends the dinner.

Inasmuch as Mr. Hearst's speech will be the first he has delivered since the recount of the ballots for the 1905 election was begun, it will be heard with extreme interest. The dinner has another significance for while it is the second annual dinner of the Independence League, it is the first big dinner, of the new National party.

List of Noted Guests.

The list of guests include Hon. William Randolph Hearst, Samuel Seabury, John Ford, Otto A. Rosalsky, Thomas L. Hisgen of Massachusetts, the party's candidate for Governor of that State at the last election; Reuben Roble Lyon, the party's candidate for Judge of the Court of Appeals in New York last Fall; William S. Jackson, John D. Spellman of Vermont, William M. Osgood of Massachusetts, M. W. Howard of Alabama, John Temple Graves, Clarence J. Sherry, Henry A. Powell, Howard N. Taylor of Illinois, Grenville S. McFarland of Massachusetts, J. S. Sheppard of Kansas, Gaynor Williams of California, C. F. S. Neal of Indiana, Charles A. Walsh of Indiana and others of prominence in the affairs of the Independence League.

STAR THEATRE'S GIFT.

The Red Cross (Chelsea Relief Committee) headquarters on Causeway street have acknowledged the receipt of 1,284 pairs of stockings from the Star Theatre, No. 7 Mount row, to aid the Chelsea fire sufferers.

PICK BIG BUSINESS MEN TO FIGHT THE MERGER

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE PRESIDENT TO-DAY SELECTING COMMITTEE TO OPPOSE BILL.

President Bernard J. Rothwell of the Chamber of Commerce is at work to-day selecting the committee of five delegated by the chamber yesterday to appear before the Committee on Railroads of the Legislature in opposition to the merger of the Boston & Maine Railroad with the New York, New Haven & Hartford.

"I may announce the committee this afternoon," said President Rothwell to-day, "and then again it may be to-morrow before I will be able to give out the names. I am getting in touch with members whom I desire to appoint, and from some I am awaiting acceptance."

Secretary Meade of the Chamber of Commerce says that there will be nothing further done by the chamber on the merger until President Rothwell appoints the committee of five. The future plans of action will then be determined by the committee.

This committee as well as the one especially appointed for legislative work by the resolution passed by the chamber yesterday is given power to act in any other manner they may deem wise to block the merger.

The resolution against the merger passed yesterday by a practically unanimous vote by the Chamber of Commerce, is one of the most telling blows yet delivered against the proposed absorption of the Maine road by the New Haven.

Vice-President Byrnes of the New York road addressed the chamber recently, setting forth the advantages that New England commerce would derive from the merger, while Louis D. Brandeis, in a straightforward talk to the chamber, opposed it. The members of the exchange comprise the largest receivers and shippers in New England of products from the country over. Both sides to the merger controversy declared the sentiment that the support of the Chamber of Commerce would give. This has gone to the opponents of the merger.

BILL FORBIDS ELECTRIC AND GAS MERGER

The consolidation of the Boston Consolidated Gas Company with the Edison Electric Light Company is specifically prohibited by House Bill 501, introduced by the Massachusetts House of Representatives to-day by the Joint legislative committee on public lighting, headed by Attorney Herbert Riley of Woburn and Captain Tom Pattison of Barnstable. On Beacon Hill it is believed that the bill reported to-day will not be fought. It was drafted for the Board of Gas and Electric Light Commissioners, which was instructed by last year's Legislature to investigate the consolidation of gas and electric lighting corporations in this State and report recommendations.

The bill authorizes gas companies to consolidate with other gas companies. Electric light companies can also combine. But no gas company in Massachusetts can consolidate with an electric lighting concern. The Boston Consolidated Gas Company has a monopoly in this city of gas lighting, and the same is true of the Edison corporation in regard to electric lighting.

The clause specifically prohibiting them from consolidating is in the bill as an amendment.

REFUGEES NOW STRICKEN WITH MEASLES

An epidemic of measles is an additional misfortune to the 180 Chelsea fire refugees who have been housed in the Irvington street armory since the conflagration. Five children were stricken with the disease, and they and their relatives have been deported to other quarters. The members of one other family have been isolated in a room in the armory set aside as quarantine, and the entire building has been fumigated.

The illness was first diagnosed as measles yesterday afternoon by Dr. Butler and prompt action was taken to prevent its spread. Today the Board of Health decided that a member of another family had developed symptoms of the disease and this lead to immediate isolation.

All the patients are children. They played together, and with other little refugees in a room set aside for the purpose, and there is terror in the armory to-day lest a large number of other fire sufferers will be stricken. Jewish society women have been visiting the armory and looking out for the comfort of little ones, and there is also fear that the disease may be carried into wealthy homes in Boston.

No information has been given out as to where the deported families were sent.

BERLIN CANDY SHOP WIPED OUT BY FIRE

BERLIN, N. H., April 23.—A fire, which started early to-day, destroyed a candy shop, owned by James A. Pickford on Main street, and the home of M. W. Burlingame, causing a total loss of $10,000.

SAVE ENGINES FROM FIRE AT RISK OF LIVES

Risking their lives by a daring rush into the old Fitchburg roundhouse, the interior of which was a seething furnace, two Boston & Maine engineers ran out three costly locomotives, while sheets of flames licked at them through the cab windows. The fire, which started from an unknown cause, completely destroyed the roundhouse at Somerville and the ten engines which were left within.

The fire was discovered just after 10 o'clock last night. The railroad men started to fight it without outside aid, but their hose burst before a stream touched the flame. Then an alarm was rung in, but the big engine house was a mass of flames before the arrival of the firemen.

In the meantime, Engineer Adams of the wrecking engine had rushed into the blazing roundhouse, mounted the cab of an engine that had steam in it and run it into the yard. Jumping down again from his seat, he again dashed into the building and saved a second locomotive.

Engineer Harry Pease of one of the yard shifting engines disappeared into the dense, stifling smoke that filled the engine house and soon locomotive No. 180 emerged.

Flames were shooting into the air from the woodwork of the feeder and the coal and creeping around the cab windows. Four conservative estimate places the loss in the vicinity of $25,000.

DR. AMESBURY SANE, DECLARE ALIENISTS

The alienists appointed to examine Dr. Walter R. Amesbury reported to the Suffolk Superior Criminal Court at Dedham to-day that he was not insane when he shot and killed his wife at her home in Hyde Park last Christmas Day.

The commission, composed of Drs. George P. Jelly and Joseph W. Courtney, says: "While a man of considerable emotional instability, Dr. Amesbury was not insane at the time of the homicide, nor is he at the present time."

Dr. Amesbury is under indictment for murder, first degree, and upon receiving the report of the sanity commission the court ordered his presentation for trial this morning.

His counsel, John P. Leighton, announced the discovery of a defect in the indictment, whereby the name of the defendant's victim was given as Anna "Rosalind of Anna "H." Amesbury. On this ground he moved for a postponement, and it was granted. The case was put over to the September term, and meanwhile the District Attorney will have the indictment corrected.

2 THUGS ROB POOR WOMAN IN BROAD DAY

LYNN, April 23.—Mrs. Catherine Barry, a poor scrubwoman, with four small children, was held up and robbed of her purse containing nineteen cents by two burly negroes in broad daylight to-day in the Proctor office building in Exchange street. One of the men held her while the other rifled her pocketbook. James F. (Shannon) Burnett and William J. Miner, Lynn men with prison records, were arrested.

After working since midnight scrubbing the floors of the building, Mrs. Barry finished about 8 a. m., and sat down in the office of the Boston Mutual Life Insurance Company to await the arrival of the janitor to get his pay. The handbag was in her lap.

The door of the office was open and as the two strangers entered Mrs. Barry rose to leave. One of the men stepped in front of her and told her to sit down again and be quiet. Then he put his hands upon Mrs. Barry's shoulders and held her while his companion grabbed the handbag and rifled it.

Some books and papers which the bag contained were thrown upon the floor. The purse was taken out and then the bag was returned. Mrs. Barry screamed as the two departed. Frank B. Estes, a constable, was in the building at the time, and he ran down the hall in response to the woman's cries. he collided with Burnett, holding him until the arrival of the police.

After Burnett had been taken away by the officers, Miner returned in search of his companion and was arrested. Mrs. Barry identified both men.

At the police station Miner broke down and cried.

BATTLES WITH FIRE TO SAVE HOME; DYING

NORTH ATTLEBORO, April 23.—On the anniversary of her father's death in flames, Mrs. Mary Couture, forty years of age, of Attleboro Falls, lies dying as the result of burns which she received while battling with a brush fire, which destroyed the destruction of the pretty home which she and her hard-working husband, Elmond Couture, had just purchased.

Thinking only of saving the new home, Mrs. Couture dashed out of the house and began a brave fight to check the onrush of the flames. Just as she had succeeded in putting out the fire a foul flickering flame seized her light house dress, and in an instant the woman was ablaze.

Screaming in agony she ran for aid to a neighbor's, Mrs. Joseph Marcouvillier. Mrs. Marcouvillier ran to Mrs. Couture's rescue and with a bucket of water managed to extinguish the flames just as the woman fell fainting to the ground.

Dr. W. F. Miller of Attleboro was summoned. He says her death is a matter of a few hours. Just one year ago, Mrs. Couture's father, Joseph Duquette of New Bedford, met a tragic death under exactly similar circumstances.

4 YEARS FOR METER THIEF

The Boston Consolidated Gas Company is making a vigorous effort to put a stop to the raid on ...nrepayment meters by men who break ...o cellars and basements and by others who secure entrance by pretending that they are agents of the company.

James Callahan, alias James Willison, was sentenced to-day by Judge Brown in the Superior Criminal Court to not less than four nor more than six years in State prison for having burglar tools in his possession and for larceny from prepayment meters of the Boston Consolidated Gas Company.

He was sentenced last July for a year in the House of Correction for the same offence, but was pardoned in six months. After two weeks of freedom he was again arrested for the same thing. This time the company pressed through its attorneys, for a severe sentence as an example.

WHOLE WORLD OF SPORTS COVERED FOR THE BOSTON AMERICAN BY ITS CORPS OF EXPERTS

NOW PACKEY IS AFTER BOUT WITH BAT NELSON

CHICAGO, April 23.—Packey McFarland arrived home yesterday afternoon and immediately made a bee line for those dear stock yards, the place of his birth. This longing to see the old familiar sights and smell the old familiar smells was the sole reason that Packey left the land of sunshine so soon. Had he been able to conquer his ill attack of homesickness he would still be out on the coast. But the feeling for home was too strong and the conqueror of Jimmy Britt tilted it back.

However, it is not likely that Packey will remain long, for he is in such demand on the coast that he is certain to be trailing Westward within a short time. Anyway, he will not rest long after the call of battle hits his eardrums.

Packey naturally was delighted with his success in the Britt contest, though he claims that he never had the slightest doubt of his ability to trim the Californian. However, he was free to admit that he did not expect Britt to be as easy as he proved and expected a harder battle from the native son.

Packey has any number of good offers, but the only man he wants to fight right now is Battling Nelson, and it is almost certain that he will return to the coast within a month to close a match with the Dane. Just before leaving Harry Gilmore, Packey's manager, turned down a flat offer of $17,500 for Packey's end for a match with Joe Gans.

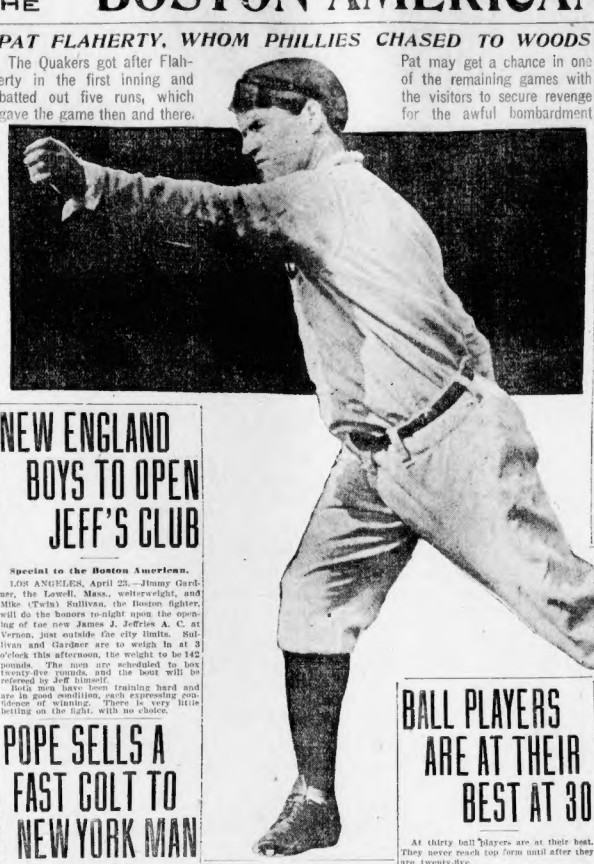
"In the first place," said Gilmore "we are not yet ready for Gans. There are a number of fellows that we want to fight first and there is plenty of time for Packey to meet Joe. In the second place, I think a match between Packey and Gans will draw a lot more money than that.

"We are also offered a nice sum to go down to Los Angeles to fight Phil Brock before Jim Jeffries's club, but Packey could not wait to get home and so we passed it up. He will take a little rest and then go back to the coast and fix on some big match. Packey is surely the card out there. He made a fit with everybody that met him and the critics out there think he is one of the greatest fighters that ever appeared in California.

"The Britt match ended just as we thought it would, only, to tell the truth, I expected to see the contest go at least fifteen rounds. Packey fought the greatest fight I ever saw him put up and I was astounded at the way he shot out his right hand. That is a new wrinkle for him and it certainly is a winner. Britt, after the contest, declared that Packey was a harder hitter and a faster puncher than Gans."

PAT FLAHERTY, WHOM PHILLIES CHASED TO WOODS

The Quakers got after Flaherty in the first inning and batted out five runs, which gave the game then and there.



Pat may get a chance in one of the remaining games with the visitors to secure revenge for the awful bombardment

WASHINGTON, April 23.—This afternoon the Red Sox and the Senators will clash for the second time. The locals are thirsting for revenge because of the walloping handed them yesterday, while the visitors are bent upon repeating the trick.

Although his team had had a bad start, Manager Cantillon is still of the opinion that he has a fine team this season, and he expects good results from them before long. He says that just as soon as he gets find their batting eye and their star twirler, Johnson, returns to the game, they will make things hum for the other members of the American League.

McGuire Tickled to Death.

Manager McGuire is tickled to death with the batting and fielding of his charges, and intends to keep his team from descending any lower than third place and possibly jump higher this week or next.

Cy Young, the reliable veteran, who has won both games that he has pitched so far this season, is slated to work for the Red Sox to-day, while Tom Hughes, a former Bostonian, will most likely work for the Senators.

Cy is playing the game of his life just at present. He is not only hitting well, but he is also swatting the ball for keeps. He has one victory against Washington already to his credit, and he expects to chalk up another to-day, if he is sent to the rubber.

The Bostons took their first league game away from home by a score of 5 to 3 here yesterday. Charley Smith twirled for the locals, but he was batted so freely that he was relieved by Faulkenberg, who allowed the Bostons only one safety in the three innings in which he officiated.

Winter Held Senators Safe.

While Boston was touching up Smith in fiery shape, George Winter was holding the Senators safe. Seven singles were all that the home team, which hitherto has been one of his hoodoos, was able to get off his delivery.

As he was not in the best physical condition, Winter was taken out of the box at the end of the seventh inning and Minstrel Morgan substituted, the latter not allowing the home team a safe hit.

It was an ideal day for the game, and it was not surprising that all records for attendance were broken.

PROVIDENCE, April 23.—What promises to be the most successful season in the history of Eastern League baseball opens to-day, when the Grays cross bats with the Rochester team. It is generally conceded throughout the circuit that the race will be much closer than for several years past, Toronto having strengthened its weak spots, principally with former stars of the big leagues.

The Grays suffered severe losses at the close of last season by the drafting of McConnell, Lord, Chadbourne, Harris and Mc-Quillan, but Manager Hugh Duffy has spared no pains or expense to fill these vacancies, and with Ed Barry back on the pitching staff, with Hickey behind the bat, Reidy and Pitchers Frock and Sline from Toronto, the team has experts to put up a strong field and land his team well among the leaders.

The pre-season work has shown the men to be all in first-class condition, the new infielders and batters now doing especially fine work. The outfield will be well taken care of with Poland, Schwartz and Thayer, Clock and Manager Duffy himself to select from.

Big Jack Cronin will probably twirl the opening game, with Peterson on the receiving end.

READVILLE IS MECCA TRACK FOR HORSES

Secretary Charles Jewett of the New England Breeders' Association is having the dressing removed from the Readville track this week, so that in a few days the trainers will be able to step their horses along a little in the finish of their morning exercise. He re orts that there will be more horses in training at the track this year than has been the case since the opening of the course.

Of course the regulars, Henry Titer, Edwin Bither, Bob Proctor, Jimmy Carpenter, Jimmy O'Donnell, Bob Lundy with the Hall horses, and Greiner Drinkwater will have their respective racing stables filled to completion by the latter part of next month.

By that time, too, will have arrived John Young with the Allen Farm horses from Pittsfield, Arthur Parker with the Shawsheen River Farm string from Bedford, Bert Fowler with the mattress stable of Arnold Lawson from the Dreamwold Farm in Scituate, D. W. Caton with a select lot of Futurity timber from Foxboro, Fred Hyde with the Hunlinger horses from New Haven, Charles Sanders's fine stable from Salem, and possibly James A. Grahomb, the Concord, N. H., owner and trainer; Billy Andrews from Poughkeepsie with a few of his best for the finishing touches, and Al Smith, the Clearwater, Pa., trainer.

Many other trainers have all located it is estimated that fully 250 horses will be quartered at the track every pleasant day in preparation for the active racing season that opens with the $5,000 free-for-all trot at Readville on July 4.

NEW ENGLAND BOYS TO OPEN JEFF'S CLUB

Special to the Boston American.

LOS ANGELES, April 23.—Jimmy Gardner, the Lowell, Mass., welterweight, and Mike (Twin) Sullivan, the Boston fighter, will do the honors to-night upon the opening of the new James J. Jeffries A. C. at Vernon, just outside the city limits. Sullivan and Gardner are to weigh in at 3 o'clock this afternoon, the weight to be 142 pounds. The men are scheduled to box twenty-five rounds, and the bout will be refereed by Jeff himself.

Both men have been training hard and are in good condition, each expressing confidence of winning. There is very little betting on the fight, with no choice.

POPE SELLS A FAST COLT TO NEW YORK MAN

Benjamin Pope, of the Boston firm of Curtis & Pope, and owner of the Stonyvale Farm in Concord, has sold to Andrew Crawford of New York the three-year-old trotting gelding the Sixpense, by Achille, 2:13¾, out of a mare by Manbrino Startle, 2:17¾.

If handled for speed this year Trainer Bob Proctor says that The Sixpense will beat 2:20 a mile but Mr. Pope would have retained the colt and kept him in Proctor's stable at Readville had he been entered in any Futurity stakes, but neglect of doing this left his speed of little value in his three-year-old form.

Mr. Pope has some very youngsters and aged horses still on the farm. Proctor has four at the track. The Minute Man, 2:21¼, by the Futurity candidate Minotor, 2:13¾, by the Futurity candidate Minotor, 2:13¾, by the Futurity candidate Minotor, 2:13¾

Cab Drivers—Young Men With Any Interest in Machinery—ATTENTION!

The Automobile Cab Offers a Splendid Living to Intelligent, Earnest Men.

Copyright, 1908, by American-Journal-Examiner

In the next year or two a good many men, young and old, will lay the foundation of a comfortable living and a good little fortune, quickly accumulated, thanks to the automobile cab, or, as it is commonly called, the "taxicab."

We mention the matter briefly now. We shall return to it often enough to make sure that the thousands of cab drivers who are the good friends of this newspaper, and all the other ambitious men who read this newspaper, shall have had the taxicab idea put clearly before them.

This editorial is based on personal investigation of the taxicab question, the possibility of profits, etc., and on many conversations with regular horsecab drivers with whom the writer is personally acquainted.

The horsecab, in big cities at least, IS DOOMED. It is hard for the drivers to make a living—harder than ever—and it has never been easy for the men who had to struggle against big stables with special hotel and railroad privileges. Hansom cabs are selling at auction almost fornothing. Twenty dollars, and even less, will now buy a vehicle that cost $250 originally.

Taxicabs are taking in very large sums, and those of the drivers that are intelligent and reliable make four dollars a day, and even more, although they do not own their own vehicles.

We advise men looking for a chance to make a good living, CAB DRIVERS IN BIG CITIES ESPECIALLY, to consider the automobile cab most carefully. We are going to talk with manufacturers of these vehicles, and shall put before our readers all the information that we can obtain.

At present a taxicab can easily take in $20 a day. Even with bad management, this means $10 a day net profit, allowing for repairs and a sinking fund to buy a new cab when the old one wears out. The business will not always be as profitable as at present. The supply is far below the demand now. A more adequate supply will eventually make the profits smaller. But ALWAYS THE INTELLIGENT MAN RUNNING HIS OWN TAXICAB, and buying the right cab, and not trash, will make an excellent living—better than any horsecab driver could dream of making.

We write this to interest cab drivers in a general way. Later we shall discuss the thing more in detail, talking to the cab drivers' organization, and perhaps arranging for demonstrations by various big automobile concerns that will be of value to the cabmen.

The automobile cab means a serious blow at the livelihood of a hard-working body of men, wherever the taxicab has been introduced. The thing for the cabmen to do is to meet the situation as intelligent men have always done in the past, BY SEIZING THE NEW IDEA THEMSELVES AND TURNING IT TO THEIR OWN BENEFIT.

Excellent cabs can be bought now on relatively short notice at a price that would yield a big return. We hope to persuade the builders of these cabs that it would pay them to give free instructions to the horsecab drivers, and that it would pay also to allow reliable and intelligent men to obtain the taxicabs on a very small cash payment, with an additional payment each day. There is no reason why the invention of this marvellous new machine should not be beneficial to the thousands of individual cab drivers, instead of simply meaning profit to a few companies.

We mean to bring this about if we can possibly do it.

The every-day cab driver who understands his business is the ideal man for the taxicab, and, all things being equal, can do better than any other as a taxicab manager, for "cabbing" is skilled work, and experience helps.

But any ambitious, steady young man, with a slight taste for machinery, no taste for alcohol and a civil tongue in his head, ought to be able to earn $5 a day with one of these machines, and save a thousand dollars a year besides—which means independence.

We shall return to this discussion.

Interesting Confessions by Interesting Criminals

Like Rats, Burglars and Other Parasites, GAMBLERS HATE THE LIGHT.

Copyright, 1908, by American-Journal-Examiner

The "gentlemen" who manage the race tracks and call themselves the "Jockey Club," have become rather sensitive lately. For instance, they made a rule that men making photographs for newspapers and other publications must not come inside their gambling resorts—the rule being modified as follows: "The ban on newspaper photographers will be lifted, provided they personally sign a written agreement to refrain from taking pictures in the betting ring and of the people in the grand stand."

This is an interesting confession as to the real feelings of those Jockey Club "gentlemen."

They are in the gambling business for what they can make out of it. They are engaged in making many little thieves, that their contributions of stolen money may build up "the gentleman's sport." Like many others, they resemble the French cheating gambler, who said, "I know that I cheat, but I don't like to be told about it."

These Jockey Club "gentlemen" know that they are running a criminal establishment, but they do not like to be told about it, especially in an actual photograph.

As to the people in the grand stand not liking to be photographed, no wonder. They are using their time and their money in defiance of law. Those of them that are honest may not be honest later on. And those that remain honest ought to be disturbed by the knowledge that they are helping to make other people dishonest. It might not be such a bad idea to photograph a few of them every day, if only for the information of their employers or others.

Little Editorials from the People

"BARE-FACED ROBBERY"

No. 66 Cook street,
Newton Highlands.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

I was much pleased with the fajing administered, in to-night's AMERICAN to a certain Boston newspaper which is evidently trying to increase its circulation at the expense of the AMERICAN. I have several times been obtaind out of 82 AMERICAN, by the resemblance in general appearance of that paper to the one I have long read and admired. It seems to me that when a newspaper makes itself so cheap as to masquerade in the dress of a contemporary, it is practically confessing its own inferiority. It is bare-faced robbery. With best wishes for the BOSTON AMERICAN, and its editor, Respectfully yours, for fair methods.

WOMAN'S HAPPIEST YEARS

Her Love and Enjoyment of Life Are Deeper in Middle Age Than in Youth

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Copyright, 1908, by American-Journal-Examiner

SOME time last October I was asked to answer the question, "At what age are a woman's affections the strongest?"

Such a theme is as timely in Spring as in Autumn, and as difficult to discuss one season as another.

Woman is always a difficult and complicated subject to analyze, and at the best we can only generalize.

One fact is too obvious to need more than merely stating—the girl under twenty is wholly incapable of forming a lifelong attachment.

If she does form one which lasts through all the vicissitudes of maturer years, it is merely a happy chance which has aided her, not the result of her ripened judgment, fine intuition or mature emotions.

One, however, might let this statement cover all attachments—at whatever age—since marriage is so evidently a lottery. An engagement of seven years, while the lovers saw each other almost daily, has been known to end in separation after a year of married misery.

Deeper at Twenty-Five

NEVERTHELESS, as a rule, a woman of twenty-five is better able to form a correct idea of a man's character than a girl of eighteen; and she is capable of a deeper love and a more practical expression of it.

So far as the real intensity of a woman's affections is concerned, I believe they are rarely at their strongest before thirty or thirty-five. A woman of that age is to all earlier ages what August is to April, May or June. She craves affection more than she craved it in her adolescence, and she is better able to appreciate and to reciprocate.

This is why so many seemingly happy marriages result in a climax of disaster in middle life. This is why so many women of thirty-five or forty figure in the scandals and the divorces of the day.

Men, who delight in assuring us that they are our mental superiors in all the sciences and arts; men, who have developed their brains and grown great and wise and wonderful in every direction save one, have yet to learn that a wife of middle age—which is the very zenith of life—is no more ready to "settle down" into the dull commonplace of "understood" affection than is the sun at midday ready to set behind the western hills.

Every day I meet bright, intelligent, intellectual men whose lives are filled with worldly aims and ambitions, and who are supremely unconscious of or indifferent to the fact that their wives are starving for expressed affection.

Suffer Heart Hunger

I HAVE heard men laughingly refer to sentiment as a thing outlived or submerged in the sea of reality, and use the plural, indicating that they believed the condition was mutual, when I have been the confidant of the heart-hunger and reached discontent of the wives who were included in this plural reference.

Thousands of American men to-day believe they are the most unselfish and devoted of husbands, because they are giving brain, mind and body to business, with the idea of bestowing luxuries upon their families.

They have no hour for calling, no time for revelation, no evening for social life or entertainments, and no impulse for lover-like attentions to their wives.

They return home tired, nervous, irritable or sleepy, and think the wife unreasonable who complains, since they are giving all their energies for her comfort and pleasure.

Yet her comfort and pleasure would be tenfold if the husband were to escort her about occasionally with the same lover-like attention of his days of wooing, and if he were able to talk to her of other things than business and finance.

The middle-aged man may be satisfied with his ambitious aims, but it is the middle-aged woman who craves and feels the deepest love.

White Magic

By Wex Jones

I'VE never shed a rampant grizzly's blood;
I've never tracked the tiger to his berth;
I've never heard my dum-dum bullets thud
As they brought the mighty elephant to earth;
But I long to go a-chasing, a-following and facing
The wildest, fiercest animals that hunters ever get—
The lion, leopard, rhino—and why, I'm blest if I know.
Except Spring fever gets me with the leafing of the tree.

I'VE never strayed without the beaten road,
Over unexploited continents to roam,
Yet I feel a strange uneasiness, the prick-ing of a goad,
That bids me leave my crowded city home.
My spirit's all a-quiver to canoe down some wild river,
To plunge through trackless jungle, to dare the mountain pass,
O for desert, forest, prairie!—confound the wicked fairy
That frets a proxy citizen with the springing of the grass.

I'VE never crossed the ocean, never been upon a ship;
The joggling of a rowboat makes me turn extremely pale;
I always feel much safer when the ferry makes her slip,
And there's something most unpleasant about a bowling gale.
Yet now mad longings fill me; old sailor stories thrill me;
The tides and winds and currents are pulsing in my blood;
I'm wild to go a-sailing, a-pirating or whaling—
O the lure of sea adventure at the bursting of the bud!
